PREFACE

TO THE STEREOTYPED EDITION

OF THE

COMPLETE TARIFF HAND-BOOK.

THE great change made in Canadian economical policy, during the Parliamentary Session of 1879, renders necessary a new edition of the present work, which is now issued under the title of "THE COMPLETE TARIFF HAND-BOOK." The new tariff is given in full; with the old duties, the new duties, and the American duties on corresponding articles in parallel columns. Official interpretations of the new tariff, as given in a Customs circular of recent date, are added. In the first edition was a table of the principal American imports for one year, 1876—with columns giving quantities, values, duties and actual percentages of duties on values, which is now replaced by a more extended table for 1878, giving all the above-mentioned items, and, in addition, the average value per unit of quantity. With a view to possible changes in details of the new Canadian tariff, the portion of the book relating thereto is interleaved with writing paper, left blank, on which future changes may be recorded. By this means, it is believed, the new book may be made useful for a number of years yet to come. It has besides a permanent value as a record of Canadian tariff changes during thirty years, and of what the American tariff stood at when the last great change in Canadian policy took place.

It has been suggested to the compiler that extracts from European customs tariffs, more extended than those given in the first edition, might be desirable. But as many European commercial treaties are about to expire, and as the coming year will almost certainly witness important changes in several countries, it was not deemed worth while to extend the record of old tariffs, destined soon to be replaced by new ones. In all probability the new tariff just adopted by Germany, and the new French tariff now being framed, but not expected to be completed until near the close of the present year, will powerfully influence the action that other European countries will shortly take. Under these circumstances the brief extracts given from several Continental tariffs are simply repeated, with the intention chiefly of showing European systems of classification.

The enlarged stereotyped edition is offered to the public as being really and truly what it professes to be—a Complete Tariff Hand-Book for Canada and the United States. It is this to begin with, having much other interesting matter thrown in. The American and Canadian tariffs, as now in force, are given in full, with several pages of sections of Acts and official interpretations; and a special value attaches to the record of former tariff changes in Canada. It is hoped that the complete work will be found of interest, not only to the Canadian public, but also to commercial men in Britain and the United States, and even in distant British Colonies. No other tariff book embracing both Canada and the United States has been published; and no other is so likely to prove of permanent value.

TORONTO, CANADA, August, 1879.

INTRODUCTION.

ON the question of Protection and National Policy for Canada the recent general election was decided, with a change of Government as the immediate result. The reconstruction of the tariff is the single problem that more than any other now occupies the public mind, and that must for some time to come continue to engage a principal share of public attention.* Under these circumstances, it is certainly desirable that precise information regarding the customs tariffs of our own and other countries should be placed before the Canadian people in convenient and accessible form, and at a price compatible with a considerable degree of popular diffusion. It is not enough that two or three dozen leading statesmen of both parties, and a few hundred members of Parliament and other public men, should be able to make exact comparison between our own and foreign tariffs, and between our own as it now is and as it has been in years past. For the general public to form anything like an intelligent judgment of what our statesmen may propose and oppose respectively, a fair measure of information as to actual facts is absolutely necessary. Nothing to serve the purpose of conveying such information to the Canadian people generally has ever yet been placed within their reach, and it may confidently be affirmed that it is a real want which this little volume is intended to supply, and a very pressing want, too, at the present time.

The compiler has endeavoured to present, in the first place, a view of the Canadian tariff as it is, also of the changes it has undergone during the last thirty years. This takes us back to Old Canada, then consisting of the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario only, and to a period a few years anterior to the Confederation movement. Three different tariffs are given in full—that of 1859, of Old Canada, because it and the tariff of 1858, of which it was an enlargement and expansion, were the first ever framed in this country for the avowed purpose of developing home manufactures, and in obedience to a popular demand; that of 1868, because it put the finishing touches to the tariff of 1867, which was the first enacted under Confederation; and the present tariff, for the very obvious reason that it is the one now in force. These are given in schedule form, as in the original Acts; and the latter also in the form of alphabetical arrangement. A summary of the various changes in excise duties during thirty years is also given. Under the proper heads will be found a concise statement of all the changes in the Canadian sugar duties during the past thirty years; and an account of the tea duties as affected by the legislation of 1872 and subsequent years. A specially interesting part of the book is that wherein the Canadian and American duties on a number of leading articles of commerce are given in parallel columns, for the purpose of ready comparison.

The American tariff, in schedule form, is taken from the fourth edition of Morgan's United States Tariff, 1875, since which time few alterations of any account have been made. But, in order to insure accuracy up to the present time, the revised proofs have been corrected by Heyl's large United States Tariff Book of latest date, the use of which was kindly furnished for the occasion by Hon. W. C. Howells, American Consul at Toronto.

The subject of reciprocity with the United States is naturally connected with that of the trade policy of Canada. For this reason there are given in these pages the Draft Treaty of 1874; the official Memorandum of that year's negotiations, by Sir Edward Thornton and Hon. George Brown; and Mr. Brown's speech in the Senate the year following, in explanation. These documents are of permanent value, not merely as a record of the negotiations of 1874, but also as constituting a magazine of facts and figures relative to the operation of the old Treaty, and to the course of trade between the two countries during a long period of years. Whether we think Reciprocity with the Great Republic a good thing for Canada, or whether, as do some, we believe it to mean in effect commercial annexation, with the political extinction of the Dominion as the inevitable consequence, and that the separate existence of our "new nationality" is best assured without it—matters not. Thirteen years of Reciprocity, and the effort of 1874 for its restoration, are upon the record, and cannot properly be omitted in the present connection. The principal object of the book being to do something never done before, viz., to publish to the Canadian people what the figures of the American Tariff actually are, and to put plainly before them the hard facts of American commercial policy—some ninety pages, or more than half the space, are devoted to this and the subject of Reciprocity together.

The extracts from the French tariff (general), are translated from a copy kindly lent for the purpose by Mr. C. O. Perrault, French Vice-Consul at Montreal.

The extracts from the French tariff on British goods, under the Anglo-French Treaty, and the portions given of the tariffs of Germany, Holland, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland, are taken from an official Return made to the British House of Commons in 1876, being therefore up to a comparatively recent date. In this Return the equivalents of the foreign import duties are given in English money, weights and measures, by which the English or Canadian reader, looking over the figures, is saved much troublesome calculation. Without this important convenience, indeed, the tariff figures of Continental Europe would be of little practical use to the general public, either in England or Canada.

The Return referred to includes the tariffs or duties levied on British goods by seventeen different countries, and the dutiable goods are divided into eleven different classes, the whole making over two hundred pages of a large book. To have reprinted all this would have made, not a "Hand-book," but a bulky and expensive volume, which for present purposes was out of the question. A selection was therefore made, in the first place, of France, Germany, Italy, Holland Belgium and Switzerland (three great States and three small States in the European family), as fairly representative of Continental tariff systems generally, Next, a further selection was made of the most important classes of manufactures, which are Nos. 1, 2 and 3 in the list, as follows :—

1. Yarns and thread :—Cotton, linen, silk and wool.
2. Woven manufactures :—Cotton, linen, silk and wool.
3. Metals, unwrought and wrought :—Iron and steel.

These classes are the most important in the list, not only from a commercial or manufacturing point of view, but also because they form the principal battleground in the contest between Protection and Free Trade. It is with relation to these classes of goods that the issues between the two opposing trade systems are most sharply defined and most hotly disputed. In the present connection they are the most interesting of all to the Canadian public, for the reason that, in the various classifications and rates adopted by the six countries named, we are introduced to European Continental methods of dealing with the problem of apportioning taxation on all grades of production and finish, from the crudest raw material to the last achievements of manufacturing skill. In no other classes of goods are the difficulties of the problem referred to so great and of so much national importance ; and in no others is European skill in overcoming these difficulties so well illustrated.

The French tariff in particular, as a model of perfection in classification and effectiveness in working, is well worthy of our careful examination. The compiler makes distinct claim that, in selecting the six foreign European countries named, he has by no means favoured the Protectionist side, but has done ample justice, if not indeed more than justice, to the Free Trade side of Continental tariff practice.

Having honestly endeavoured to make the book a real "TARIFF HAND BOOK," of a popular character and suitable for the general public, the compiler hopes that the mass of useful information compressed into its small compass will be found acceptable, both by Free Traders and by Protectionists.

TARIFF CHANGES IN CANADA.

A REVIEW OF THIRTY YEARS—1849 TO 1878.

Thirty years ago the Customs Tariff of Old Canada appeared to be one for revenue only: we see no indication of any purpose of Protection in the duties then imposed. By the Customs Act of 1849 there was charged upon all goods, wares, and merchandise, not otherwise charged with duty, and not enumerated in the free list, the general duty of $12\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. Leaving out bar iron and other heavy iron goods, which paid only the nominal duty of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., this included the bulk of the country's importations of manufactured goods. In 1856 the duty on general merchandise was raised to 15 per cent., and on manufactures of leather, and of India rubber, a duty of 20 per cent. was imposed. The year 1858 witnessed a revolution in the commercial policy of Old Canada, and the inauguration of Protection for the avowed purpose of developing home manufactures. The 25 per cent. list included manufactures of leather, viz.: Boots and shoes: and harness and saddlery—and clothing or wearing apparel, made by hand or machinery.

Under the heading of "goods paying 15 per cent.," it was thus enacted: "All articles not hereinbefore enumerated as charged with specific or ad valorem duty, and not exempted from the payment of duty, shall be chargeable with a duty of 15 per cent. on the value thereof."

559 The Tariff of 1859 was a further carrying out of the aim and purpose of the movement begun in 1858. It is elsewhere given in full, and it will be observed, on comparing the two, that the principal difference between them lies in the advance of goods unenumerated, in 1859, to 20 per cent., instead of 15 per cent., as in 1858. This being the case, no 20 per cent. list appears in 1859. For reprinting in full the Tariff of 1859 is selected, it having been that under which manufacturing advanced in old Canada, during seven years continuously, until the change of 1866.

8616 The great change of 1866 consisted in the reduction, to 15 per cent., of the goods which by the tariff of 1859 paid 20 per cent.; boots and shoes, harness and saddlery, and ready-made clothing, formerly 25 per cent., being placed at the same reduced figure. The Customs Act of December 13th, 1867, and that of April 29th, 1868, following Confederation, were a further carrying out of the purpose of that of 1866; as the tariff of 1859 was a further development of the movement of 1858. In the Act of 1866 appears a 15 per cent. list, which is almost a repetition of the 20 per cent. list of 1858. In that of 1867 the 15 per cent. list is dropped, and the enactment of 15 per cent. duty on all articles unenumerated is made to cover the ground intended. The same plan (the duty of 15 per cent. on all unenumerated articles) is continued in the tariff of 1868, and no 15 per cent. list appears in the Act. For publication in full the tariff of 1868 is selected, it having been, with some alterations yet to be noticed, the system which has obtained in the Dominion for now more than ten years.

In the Customs and Excise Act of 1870 the principal changes made were these:—

The specific import duties imposed by the Act of 1868 on live animals, viz.: $15 per head on horses; $10 per head on horned cattle; $2 per head on swine, and $1 per head on sheep, were abolished, and in lieu thereof a uniform duty of 10 per cent. ad valorem was substituted.

Green fruits, hay, straw, bran, seeds not classed as cereals, vegetables, including potatoes and other roots, and plants, trees, and shrubs, were charged 10 per cent. import duty.

Vinegar and acetic acid were placed at 10 cents per gallon.

The import duty on manufactured tobacco and snuff was increased to 20 cents per lb., and 12½ per cent. ad valorem; and the duty on cigars was made 45 cents per lb.

Wines of all kinds were placed at 10 cents per gallon, and 25 per cent. ad valorem.

To the free list were added bookbinders' mill-boards and binders' cloth, iron wire, brass in strips, and iron in blooms and billets not puddled).

The following articles were struck from the free list, and left among unenumerated articles paying 15 per cent., viz.: Colours and other articles when imported by room-paper makers and stainers, to be used in their trade only (see free list of 1868); steam fire-engines imported by municipalities; "machinery when used in the original construction of mills or factories (not to include steam engines, boilers, water wheels, or turbines)"; gold and silver leaf; emery paper and emery cloth; sand paper and sand cloth, and platers' leaf (all thenceforth to pay 15 per cent.).

To meet revenue exigencies impending, all customs duties were increased by five per cent., or one-twentieth of their amount.

A drawback was allowed of the customs duties paid on iron and manufactures of iron used in building composite ships in Canada; also on tin plate used in making packages for articles exported.

The change of that year, however, which attracted most attention of all was the imposition of duties on certain natural products, as under, viz.:—

	$ cts.
Coal and coke, per ton	0 50
Salt (except salt imported from the United Kingdom or any British Possession, or imported for the use of the Sea or Gulf fisheries, which shall be free of duty), per bushel of 56 lbs.	0 5
(Equal to 25 cents per barrel of 280 lbs.)
Hops	per lb. 0 5
Rice	per lb. 0 1
Wheat	per bushel. 0 4
Peas and beans, barley, rye, oats, Indian corn, buckwheat, and all other grain, except wheat.....	per bushel. 0 3
Flour of wheat and flour of rye	per barrel. 0 25
Indian meal and oatmeal, and flour or meal of any other grain, except wheat and rye.....	per barrel. 0 15

By the Customs Act of the year following (1871), the duties on coal and coke, wheat, flour, salt, peas, beans, barley, rye, oats, Indian corn, buckwheat, and all other grain, and on Indian meal, oatmeal, and flour or meal of any other grain, were repealed; also the extra one-twentieth added to all duties in 1870. The duties on hops and rice were all allowed to remain.

The Governor in Council was authorized to place on the free list materials used in Canadian manufactures, and any machinery to be used in any Canadian manufactory, on satisfactory evidence that like machinery is not then manufactured in Canada.

[For an account of the tea and coffee duties, as affected by the legislation of 1872 and 1874, see the chapter under that head.]

174 In 1874 (May 1st) the duty on articles unenumerated—15 per cent.—was raised to 17½ per cent., at which it now remains.

The import duty on foreign cigars was made 70 cts. per lb; on green and Japan tea, 4 cents; black tea, 3 cents; green coffee, 2 cents; coffee, ground or roasted, 3 cents.

The customs' duty on alcohol, brandy, rum, gin, and whiskey was advanced from 80 cents to $1; the excise duty on home-made spirits being at the same time advanced from 63 cents to 75 cents per wine gallon. Sweetened and perfumed spirits, imported, were raised from $1.20 to $1.50.

The import duty on manufactured tobacco and snuff, formerly 12½ per cent. and 20 cents per lb., was raised to 12½ per cent., and 25 cents per lb.

Wines of all kinds, containing less than 20 per cent. of alcohol, and not worth more than 40 cents per gallon, were placed at 30 cents import duty per gallon; all other wines, except sparkling, 60 cents; and sparkling wines, in bottles, at the rate of $1.25 per gallon.

A number of articles, some before unenumerated, and paying 15 per cent., and others in the free list, were transferred to the 10 per cent. list; for which see the official tariff schedules now in force. A number of ships' materials, and iron of certain descriptions, (for which see the same) were taken from the free list and made to pay 5 per cent. In the free list the words "woods when chiefly used in dyeing," were altered to "woods unmanufactured, when chiefly used in dyeing." Wool waste and flax seed were put in the free list.

77 By the Customs and Excise Act of February 20th, 1877, the import duty on cigars was raised to 50 cents per lb., and 20 per cent. ad valorem.

Tea—Green and Japan, was placed at 6 cents; and black at 5 cents per lb. Cologne water and perfumed spirits, in small flasks or bottles, 25 per cent.

Malt, import duty, 2½ cents per lb.

74 The import duty on refined petroleum, and all other bituminous oils, and on crude petroleum, was reduced to 6 cents per wine gallon; the Excise duty of 5 cents on the home manufacture being at the same time abolished.

Ale, beer, and porter, which under the Act of 1868, paid 10 per cent. ad valorem, with a specific duty besides of 7 cents per gallon in bottles, and 5 cents per gallon in casks, were charged in lieu of these duties 18 cents and 12 cents per gallon, respectively.

Cotton thread, in hanks, coloured and unfinished, numbers three and four—ply—white—not under number twenty yarn; cotton warp, not coarser than number forty; cotton thread on spools; machine twist and silk twist, and linen machine thread, which in 1874 were changed from 15 per cent. to 10 per cent., were put back again among articles unenumerated, now paying 17½ per cent.

Cotton thread, in hanks, coloured and unfinished, number six ply—white—not under number twenty yarn, were taken from the Free List and charged 10 per cent.

75 Tubes and piping, of brass, copper, or iron, drawn, were taken from the Free List and charged 17½ per cent., with provision for drawback of duty when actually used in the manufacture of boilers.

By the Malt Act of 1878, the 2½ cents import duty on malt was reduced to 2 cents, the same as the Excise duty.

The enumeration of these changes brings us to the Customs Tariff of Canada as it now stands, which is given in full in subsequent pages.

THE TEA AND COFFEE DUTIES.

LEGISLATION OF 1872 AND 1874.

On May 1, 1872, an Act of the United States Congress became law, providing that on and after July 1 of that year, tea and coffee should be admitted duty free. At that time the Canadian duties on tea were the same as imposed by the Act of December 13, 1867, viz :—15 per cent. ad valorem and 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents per lb. on black; and 15 per cent. and 7 cents per lb. on green and Japan. To prevent extensive smuggling across the border, it was necessary to take action, and at the instance of Sir Francis Hincks, then Finance Minister, the Canadian Parliament also passed an Act (35 Victoria chap. 11.) making tea and coffee free of duty. But, in order to guard against a certain contingency, an amending Act was passed (35 Victoria, chap. 12, assented to June 14, 1872), containing one section, in these words:

"Provided always, that if at any time any greater duty of customs should be payable in the United States of America on tea or coffee imported from Canada than from any other country, then the Governor in Council may impose on tea or coffee imported from the said United States, a duty of Customs equal to the duty payable in the United States on tea and coffee imported from Canada. Provided that tea or coffee imported into Canada from any country other than the said United States, but passing in bond through the United States, shall be free from duty."

The reason for this precautionary enactment may be found in section 2501, Revised Statutes of the United States, which reads as follows:—

"There shall be levied, collected, and paid on all goods, wares, and merchandise of the growth or produce of the countries east of the Cape of Good Hope (except wool, raw cotton, and raw silk as reeled from the cocoon, or not further advanced than tram, thrown, or organzine), when imported from places west of the Cape of Good Hope, a duty of 10 per centum ad valorem in addition to the duties imposed on any such article when imported directly from the place or places of their growth or production.

Canada being west of the Cape of Good Hope, tea or coffee imported hence into the United States was liable to a duty of 10 per cent.; an Order in Council under the Canadian Act imposing a like duty on tea or coffee coming here from the United States. And this position of affairs continued until the taking effect, May 1, 1874, of Mr. Cartwright's Customs and Excise Act of that year, section 14 of which is as follows:—

“So much of any Order in Council now in force under the Act passed in the thirty-fifth year of Her Majesty's reign, (1872) chaptered twelve, as imposes any duty on tea or coffee imported from the United States, and so much of the said Act or of the Act passed in the same year of Her Majesty's reign and chaptered eleven, as provides that tea or coffee imported in any way, into Canada, shall be free of duty, is hereby repealed.”

The same Act, 1874, imposed upon green and Japan tea 4 cents; on black tea, 3 cents; on green coffee, 2 cents; and on coffee ground or roasted, 3 cents per pound. By the Act of 1877 the tea duties were increased to 6 cents and 5 cents respectively. The differential duty provided for by the Order in Council under the amending Act of 1872 having been abolished, the Canadian duties on tea and coffee are the same, from whatever country imported, and whatever differential duty may be levied by any country against tea and coffee imported from Canada. These articles, are, under the circumstances, largely imported into Canada from the United States; but the American law above quoted is in effect prohibitory of the importation of tea or coffee into the United States from Canada. And thus the matter rests at present.

The Order in Council, imposing a differential duty equal to the American differential duty (10 per cent.), was dated Dec. 24, 1872, and took effect January 1st, 1873. Section 14 of the Act of 1874, above quoted, repeals the Order in Council, but not the part of the Act 35 Victoria, chap. 12, by which authority to make such an Order in Council is given. The differential duty against tea and coffee imported from the United States may, therefore, be at any time revived by another Order in Council, if this reading of section 14 of the Act of 1874 be correct.*

CANADIAN EXCISE DUTIES.

(As now in force—November, 1878.)

Spirits, 75 cents per proof gallon, wine measure, or 90 cents per Imperial gallon.

Malt, 2 cents per lb.

On every gallon of any fermented beverage made in imitation of beer or malt liquor, and brewed in whole or in part from any other substance than malt, 8 cents. Provided that brewers using sugar in the manufacture of beer, and paying the above-mentioned duty on the beer made therewith, may receive a drawback equal to the duty of excise paid by them on the malt used with such sugar in making such beer.

* The above is correct as regards the Act of 1874. The Act of 1879, section 7, also provides for the imposition of differential duties.

REVIEW OF EXCISE CHANGES IN CANADA.

In 1846 the excise duty on spirits of home manufacture (Old Canada) was 2d currency per Imperial gallon (proof). In 1849, this was reduced to 1d per wine gallon; which again was increased in 1856 to 1½d. The following changes were made in subsequent years:

In 1870 the excise duty on spirits manufactured from molasses (in bond) was placed at 65 cents per gallon; altered in 1871 to 63 cents.

The excise duties on malt and malt liquor have been as follows:

1858.	On beer, ale, porter, lager beer, or other malt liquor, per wine gallon.....	1 cent.

In 1862 a customs duty of 10 cents was put upon imported petroleum, the home manufacture being free.

In 1868 an excise duty of 5 cents per wine gallon was imposed on refined petroleum, the customs duty on refined coal oil, kerosene, and petroleum being fixed at 15 cents. Previous to this refined petroleum had paid, under the Customs Act of 1864, 15 cents, and refined coal oil or kerosene, 10 cents. In 1877 the excise duty on refined oil was abolished, and the customs duty on all petroleum and other bituminous oils, refined, also on crude petroleum, was reduced to 6 cents.

In 1867 there was imposed on Cavendish tobacco of home manufacture, and on snuff, an excise duty of 10 cents per lb.; on common Canada twist, 5 cents; and on cigars, per thousand, duties of $1.00, $2.00, $3.00, $4.00, and $5.00, according to quality. In 1870 the figures for tobacco were advanced to 15 cents and 7 cents respectively, and cigars of all qualities were charged 30 cents per lb. In 1874 the tobacco excise duties were increased to 20 and 10 cents respectively; and the excise duty on cigars of all qualities was fixed at 40 cents per lb.

UNITED STATES TARIFF.

CIRCULAR.

DEPARTMENT No. 82.
Secretary's Office.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
Washington, August 21, 1874.

The attention of collectors and other officers of customs is called to the annexed verified copy of so much of the act of June 22, 1874, entitled "An act to revise and consolidate the Statutes of the United States in force on the first day of December, 1873," as relates to the assessment and collection of duties on imports, and, especially, to the repealing clauses of this act and the following explanations in regard thereto:

The act of June 22, 1874, referred to, is, by its terms, an authoritative interpretation of the law as it existed on December 1, 1873, and, in addition, an absolute repeal of all former and other acts whatever, relative to duties upon imports, from and after June 22, 1874. In its character as an interpretation and legislative construction of acts in force December 1, 1873, it is not, however, mandatory as against any duly-authorized construction prevailing previous to the date of its enactment. In the absence of such authorized construction holding adversely, either of the courts or of the Secretary of the Treasury, its interpretation must be complied with.

After June 22, 1874, however, its requirements are absolute law, to be enforced upon all importations, without provision for time elapsing or for the date of being put on shipboard at any foreign port, or any other condition or reservation whatever.

Although many of the points to be noticed, as regards the practical effect of this enactment, have already been explained, it may be well to cite them, so far as they have been brought to the attention of this Department. Several clauses of the tariff acts of March 2, 1861, and July 14, 1862, which were at first supposed to be modified or repealed by the act of June 30, 1864, and subsequent acts, but which were revived at various times through decisions of the courts or of this Department, are decisively excluded from the present act, and therefore cease to have force after the date of its passage. Among these are, first, the rate of duty on certain descriptions of linens, viz: "Drills, coatings, brown Hollands, blay linens, damasks," which, being names or descriptions mentioned in the acts of 1861 and 1862, were not repeated in the act of 1864. Also, a class of articles coming under the general designation of "Manufactures not otherwise provided for, composed of mixed materials in part of cotton, silk, wool, or worsted, hemp, jute, or flax," the rate of duty imposed by these two acts being thirty-five per centum ad valorem. Many fabrics have remained chargeable with duty under authority of this clause, but no such classification is continued in the act of June 22, 1874, all goods formerly so classed being now charged with duty according to their identity with, or assimilation to, other defined classes. Section 2499 of said act affords a general guide to such classification.

Also in regard to several miscellaneous articles, viz "Argols, other than crude," which paid variable rates under former decisions, but which, subsequent to June 22, 1874, pay six cents per pound; also Castile soap, which, after paying duty under the act of 1864 for a long period, was restored to the rate of duty prescribed by the act of 1861 and 1862. By the present act, the rate prescribed in the act of 1864 alone has force.

Bearing in mind the intention not to repeal or alter any actually existing law, as properly interpreted on December 1, 1873, it becomes practicable to interpret the relations which those portions of the act of June 6, 1872, reducing duties on certain imports ten per centum, have to other acts as arranged in the text of the present law. As in the act of 1872 the word "herein" applied to all sections of the act, it might be inferred that the same word in the present act has the same range of application, and that therefore the abatement of ten per centum would not be allowed on any "metals or manufactures of metals" enumerated in the sections subsequent to section 2503 of the present law. But it was clearly not the intention to change the then existing law in that respect, and as the act declares that no inference adverse to the intent of the law shall be drawn from the position which any section or clause has toward any other section or clause, officers of the customs are directed to apply the ten-per-centum reduction to all articles included in, and not duly excepted from, its application in the act of 1872. This revision, however, interprets the exception of several items, and includes in such exception "Books and other printed matter, the rate of duty on which has been considered open to doubt in this respect. Books and other printed matter" will hereafter pay the prescribed duty without the reduction of ten per centum, but no "metals or manufactures of metals" entitled to such reduction under the act of 1872 will be excluded from it under the present law. "Tin in plates or sheets, terne, and tagger's tin: iron and tin plates galvanized or coated with any metal by electric batteries; and moisie iron," are, by the act of 1872, excepted from the operation of the ten-per-centum reduction, and will continue to be so excepted.

Attention is called to section 2499 of the law of June 22, 1874, which is important as a guide to the construction of other sections and clauses of the same act. This section declares that "If any non-enumerated article equally resembles two or more enumerated articles on which different rates of duty are chargeable, there shall be levied, collected, and paid on such non-enumerated article the same rate of duty as is chargeable on the article which it resembles paying the highest duty; and on all articles manufactured from two or three materials, the duty shall be assessed at the highest rates at which any of its component parts may be chargeable."

It may be said, generally, that the associated sections of the several tariff acts in force December 1, 1873, in regard to standards, samples, appraisement, custody of merchandise, and other conditions associated with the collection of duties on imported merchandise, are in no way affected by, or repealed by, the act of June 22, 1874. They are simply separated from their former connection in the arrangement adopted by the Revised Statutes.

B. H. BRISTOW, Secretary.

TITLE SEVENTY-FOUR—REPEAL PROVISIONS.

SEC. 5595. The foregoing seventy-three titles embrace the statutes of the United States general and permanent in their nature, in force on the 1st day of December, 1873, as revised and consolidated by commissioners appointed under an act of Congress, and the same shall be designated and cited, as the Revised Statutes of the United States.

SEC. 5596. All acts of Congress passed prior to said 1st day of December, 1873, any portion of which is embraced in any section of said revision, are hereby repealed, and the section applicable thereto shall be in force in lieu thereof; all parts of such acts not contained in such revision, having been repealed or superseded by subsequent acts, or not being general and permanent in their nature: Provided, That the incorporation into said revision of any general and permanent provision, taken from an act making appropriations, or from an act containing other provisions of a private, local, or temporary character, shall not repeal, or in any way affect any appropriation, or any provision of a private, local, or temporary character, contained in any of said acts, but the same shall remain in force; and all acts of Congress passed prior to said last named day no part of which are embraced in said revision, shall not be affected or changed by its enactment.

SEC. 5597. The repeal of the several acts embraced in said revision shall not affect any act done, or any right accruing or accrued, or any suit or proceeding had or commenced in any civil cause before the said repeal, but all rights and liabilities under said acts shall continue, and may be enforced in the same manner, as if said repeal had not been made; nor shall said repeal, in any manner affect the right to any office, or change the term or tenure thereof.

SEC. 5598. All offences committed, and all penalties or forfeiture incurred under any statute embraced in said revision prior to said repeal, may be prosecuted and punished in the same manner and with the same effect, as if the said repeal had not been made.

SEC. 5599. All acts of limitation, whether applicable to civil causes and proceedings, or to the prosecution of offences, or for the recovery of penalties or forfeitures, embraced in said revision and covered by said repeal, shall not be affected thereby, but all suits, proceedings or prosecutions, whether civil or criminal, for causes arising, or acts done or committed prior to said repeal, may be commenced and prosecuted within the said time as if said repeal had not been made.

SEC. 5600. The arrangement and classification of the several sections of the revision have been made for the purpose of a more convenient and orderly arrangement of the same, and therefore no inference or presumption of a legislative construction is to be drawn by reason of the title, under which any particular section is placed.

SEC. 5601. The enactment of the said revision is not to affect or repeal any act of Congress passed since the first day of December, 1873, and all acts passed since that date are to have full effect as if passed after the enactment of this revision, and so far as such acts vary from, or conflict with any provision contained in said revision, they are to have effect as subsequent statutes, and as repealing any portion of the revision inconsistent therewith.

TITLE XXXIII.

DUTIES UPON IMPORTS.

SEC. 2491. All persons are prohibited from importing into the United States, from any foreign country, any obscene book, pamphlet, paper, writing, advertisement, circular, print, picture, drawing, or other representation, figure, or image on or of paper or of other material, or any cast, instrument, or other article of an immoral nature, or any drug or medicine, or any article whatever, for the prevention of conception, or for causing unlawful abortion. No invoice or package whatever, or any part of one, in which any such articles are contained shall be admitted to entry; and all invoices and packages whereof any such articles shall compose a part are liable to be proceeded against, seized, and forfeited in due course of law. All such prohibited articles in the course of importation shall be detained by the officer^d of customs, and proceedings taken against the same as prescribed in the following section : Provided, That the drugs hereinbefore mentioned, when imported in bulk and not put up for any of the purposes hereinbefore specified, are excepted from the operation of this section.

SEC. 2492. Any judge of any district or circuit court of the United States, within the proper district, before whom complaint in writing of any violation of the preceding section is made, to the satisfaction of such judge, and founded on knowledge or belief, and, if upon belief, setting forth the grounds of such belief, and supported by oath or affirmation of the complainant, may issue, conformably to the Constitution, a warrant directed to the marshal, or any deputy marshal, in the proper district, directing him to search for, seize, and take possession of any such article or thing hereinbefore mentioned, and to make due and immediate return thereof, to the end that the same may be condemned and destroyed by proceedings, which shall be conducted in the same manner as other proceedings in case of municipal seizure, and with the same right of appeal or writ of error.

SEC. 2493. The importation of neat cattle and the hides of neat cattle from any foreign country into the United States is prohibited : Provided, That the operation of this section shall be suspended as to any foreign country or countries, or any part of such country or countries, whenever the Secretary of the Treasury shall officially determine, and give public notice thereof, that such importation will not tend to the introduction or spread of contagious or infectious disease among the cattle of the United States ; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and empowered, and it shall be his duty, to make all necessary orders and regulations to carry this law into effect, or to suspend the same as therein provided, and to send copies thereof to the proper officers in the United States, and to such officers or agents of the United States in foreign countries as he shall judge necessary.

SEC. 2494. The President of the United States, whenever in his judgment the importation of neat cattle and the hides of neat cattle may be made without danger of the introduction or spread of contagious or infectious disease among the cattle of the United States, may, by proclamation, declare the provisions of the preceding section to be inoperative, and the same shall be afterward inoperative and of no effect from and after thirty days from the date of such proclamation.

SEC. 2495. Any person convicted of a wilful violation of any of the provisions of the two preceding sections, shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 2496. No watches, watch-cases, watch-movements, or parts of watch-movements, of foreign manufacture, which shall copy or simulate the name or trade-mark of any domestic manufacturer, shall be admitted to entry at the custom-houses of the United States, unless such domestic manufacturer is the importer of the same. And in order to aid the officers of the customs in enforcing this prohibition, any domestic manufacturer of watches who has adopted trade-marks may require his name and residence and a description of his trade-marks to be recorded in books which shall be kept for that purpose in the Department of the Treasury, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe, and may furnish to the Department fac-similes of such trade-marks ; and thereupon the Secretary of the Treasury shall cause one or more copies of the same to be transmitted to such collector or other proper officer of the customs.

SEC. 2497. No goods, wares or merchandise, unless in cases provided for by treaty, shall be imported into the United States from any foreign port or place, except in vessels of the United States, or in such foreign vessels as truly and wholly belong to the citizens or subjects of that country of which the goods are the growth, production, or manufacture; or from which such goods, wares or merchandise can only be, or most usually are, first shipped for transportation. All goods, wares, or merchandise imported contrary to this section, and the vessel wherein the same shall be imported, together with her cargo, tackle, apparel, and furniture, shall be forfeited to the United States; and such goods, wares or merchandise, ship or vessel, and cargo shall be liable to be seized, prosecuted and condemned, in like manner, and under the same regulations, restrictions, and provisions, as have been heretofore established for the recovery, collection, distribution, and remission of forfeitures to the United States by the several revenue laws.

SEC. 2498. The preceding sections shall not apply to vessels, or goods, wares, or merchandise, imported in vessels of a foreign nation which does not maintain a similar regulation against vessels of the United States.

SEC. 2499. There shall be levied, collected, and paid, on each and every non-enumerated article which bears a similitude, either in material, quality, texture, or the use to which it may be applied, to any article enumerated in this title, as chargeable with duty, the same rate of duty which is levied and charged on the enumerated article which it most resembles in any of the particulars before mentioned; and if any non-enumerated article equally resembles two or more enumerated articles, on which different rates of duty are chargeable, there shall be levied, collected and paid, on such non-enumerated article, the same rate of duty as is chargeable on the article which it resembles paying the highest duty; and on all articles manufactured from two or more materials, the duty shall be assessed at the highest rates at which any of its component parts may be chargeable.

SEC. 2500. Upon the re-importation of articles once exported, of the growth, product, or manufacture of the United States, upon which no internal tax has been assessed or paid, or upon which such tax has been paid and refunded by allowance or drawback, there shall be levied, collected and paid a duty equal to the tax imposed by the internal-revenue laws upon such articles.

SEC. 2501. There shall be levied, collected, and paid on all goods, wares, and merchandise of the growth or produce of the countries east of the Cape of Good Hope, (except wool, raw cotton, and raw silk, as reeled from the cocoon, or not further advanced than tram, thrown, or organzine,) when imported from places west of the Cape of Good Hope, a duty of ten per centum ad valorem in addition to the duties imposed on any such article when imported directly from the place or places of their growth or production.

SEC. 2502. A discriminating duty of ten per centum ad valorem, in addition to the duties imposed by law, shall be levied, collected, and paid on all goods, wares and merchandise, which shall be imported on vessels not of the United States; but this discriminating duty shall not apply to goods, wares, and merchandise which shall be imported in vessels not of the United States entitled, by treaty or any act of Congress, to be entered in the ports of the United States on payment of the same duties as shall then be paid on goods, wares, and merchandise imported in vessels of the United States.

SEC. 2503. There shall be levied, collected, and paid upon all articles mentioned in the schedules contained in the next section, imported from foreign countries, the rates of duty which are by the schedules respectively prescribed: Provided,* That on the goods, wares, and merchandise in this section enumerated and provided for, imported from foreign countries, there shall be levied, collected, and paid only ninety per centum of the several duties and rates of duty imposed by the said schedules upon said articles severally, that is to say:

*On all manufactures of cotton of which cotton is the component part or chief value.

*On all paper, and manufactures of paper, excepting unsized printing-paper, books and other printed matter, and excepting sized or glued paper suitable only for printing-paper.

*On all manufactures of India rubber, gutta-percha, or straw, and on oil-cloths of all descriptions.

THE AMERICAN TARIFF ON WOOLLEN GOODS.

The following statement, made on the authority of the Yorkshire Chambers of Commerce, is of interest, as showing the enormous ad valorem rates which the American tariff imposes in some cases. While it will be observed that it is the duty per pound which brings up the whole rate to such very high figures ad valorem, it is necessary to remember that the Yorkshire woollen manufacturers are in this matter furnishing proof, not merely of exorbitant or prohibitory tariff figures in force in America, but also of the very low value of certain classes of their own goods. It is because the goods are actually so little worth that the American duty per pound runs up to such enormous per centages on the value.

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE YORKSHIRE CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE.

BRADFORD, Nov. 2, 1877.

C. O. Shepard, Esq., United States Consul, Bradford:—

SIR,—In order to meet your request for suggestions as to how the trade between this District and the United States can be increased either by legislation, executive action, or by commercial enterprise, I directed a circular to be issued to the Chambers of Commerce of this country, desiring them to collect information which might enable the Joint Tariff Committee of Yorkshire Chambers of Commerce to give a satisfactory answer to your question.

The replies received may be classed under three heads, viz.: those relating to

- (1) The light dress goods of Bradford, commonly known as worsted stuffs.
- (2) The heavy woollens, chiefly manufactured in the neighbourhoods of Batley, Dewsbury, Heckmondwike, and
- (3) The lighter woollens, which are generally produced in the districts of Leeds and Huddersfield.

Each of these classes will be treated separately, but it may be mentioned that all replies from the different Chambers of Commerce agree that the onerous duties levied upon the importations of our goods into the United States are the chief obstruction to the resumption of a trade formerly of great importance.

A revival of a mutually advantageous interchange of commodities is not to be expected whilst a prohibitory tariff prevents commercial enterprise from fulfilling its legitimate functions; but commercial enterprise on both sides of the Atlantic will certainly be ready to step in the moment that legislation shall give free scope to the merchant's operations.

It is well understood that England levies no duties upon either the raw or the manufactured produce of the United States, and is as willing to buy her raw cotton, iron, corn, or bacon, as her shirtings, watches, locomotives, or sewing machines, provided they are as cheap or cheaper than they can be produced at home.

Without, however, entering upon the region of political economy, and bearing in mind the practical results which your Government desires to accomplish by this enquiry, it will be my duty to examine into the details of the existing tariff, and to trace its effect upon the trade of this district with the United States.

That tariff is both specific and ad valorem. It thus combines the vices of both systems. It is, besides, encumbered with details which favour evasion, even more injurious to the honest importer than to the revenue.

Tables "A" and "B" show the American tariff to be the highest in the world with only one notable exception.

Examples will be found under the different heads into which I propose to divide this enquiry to prove that the combined ad valorem and weight duties produce the most anomalous results.

They have the effect to increase the duty levied in an inverse ratio to the value of the merchandise.

Thus the luxuries of the rich are less highly taxed than the necessities of the poor.

Such is the unavoidable consequences of every weight duty, which in this instance is greatly exaggerated by an arbitrary classification and numerous categories.

The present exports to the United States consist in a great measure of fancy articles, worn by the rich, who look more to fashion than to price, and of such light and high priced cloths, which in the subjoined tables, "F," 1 to 8, figure as being subject to duties ranging from 60 to 100 per cent.

All woollens intended for the great mass of the people are taxed so highly that they are virtually excluded.

Thus a superfine black broadcloth may possibly be bought in New York at not more than double its price in Europe, whilst a good quality of black pilot, worth 1s. 8d. per yard, cannot be sold to the American labourer at less than from four to five times the price at which an operative in England may procure that good, useful and warm material for his coat.

It may be safely assumed that the law-making powers never contemplated such consequences when they framed the present tariff, and yet the above is merely one example among many, and an illustration of its practical results.

At present the American tariff, with its manifold intricacies, throws a not inconsiderable part of the import trade into the hands of unscrupulous persons, who, by perjury, collusion or direct smuggling, drive the honest importer out of the market, and injure the revenue, without in any appreciable degree benefitting the consumer.

The letter marked "D" in the appendix will afford evidence of the presumption that such a corrective is really in actual operation, and the extract from the Board of Trade returns for October in appendix "C" may not be without a bearing upon this part of the question. It shows that the Dominion of Canada, notwithstanding its 17½ per cent. duty and a large woollen industry, imported during the last ten months from England woollens to the amount of 32½ pence per head, while our exports to the United States during the same period were only for 1½ pence per head.

It will be remarked that the answers, which were returned to the circular already referred to, show a general agreement in regard to the facts and calculations, though all were made from different data and given by different parties.

The details as to weight, length and width are vouched for by samples, which can be produced when necessary, and the prices are attested by the offer of manufacturers to execute any amount of orders at the given quotations with the usual trade discount.

But it must be observed that, in so far as heavy woollens are concerned, the chambers had no recent transaction to report upon, but were compelled to refer to sales which were made before the present tariff acted as a virtual prohibition of a direct and legitimate trade with the United States.

The committee, from all experience with the tariffs of various countries, have come to the conclusion that so long as import duties on textiles shall be considered necessary by any State, simple ad valorem duties are not only the fairest to the consumer, but they are also the most easily levied.

The precautions which are provided by the American law against under declarations of value would be found amply sufficient to prevent fraud whenever they are strictly applied.

In conclusion this committee beg leave most respectfully to submit that in their opinion increased imports would certainly be paid for by larger exports, and that the best method to increase the trade between this country and the United States would be to simplify the tariff by retaining an ad valorem duty alone and to make the percentage low enough to permit the direct importation of our tissues, and by that means to render the trade of the smuggler unprofitable.

I am, sir, your obedient servant,
(Signed)

JACOB BEHRENS.

President of the Bradford Chamber of Commerce, and Chairman of the Joint Tariff Committee of Bradford, Batley, Dewsbury, Heckmondwike, Halifax, Huddersfield, Morley, Leeds, Wakefield and Kendal Chambers of Commerce.

FIRST DIVISION—BRADFORD DRESS GOODS.

The appendices show that the combined ad valorem and weight-duty produces the most incongruous results.

The general charge on these goods varies from 60 to 80 per cent. on the value here, but in one case (buntings) it amounts to no less than 125 per cent.

In many cases the exigencies of the tariff are met by the production of goods of inferior usefulness.

Thus lastings and italians, both articles of very general consumption, have to be specially manufactured for the American market by reducing their weight so as to bring them within certain weight limits, and they thus become too light for the regular wear and tear. The same articles sent to countries which impose a simple ad valorem duty are made heavier, stronger, and consequently much more useful to the wearer.

Italians intended for the button manufacturer are admitted at a reduced rate of duty if they are punched with holes in every nine inches in the whole length and width of the piece.

The button manufacturer is thus favoured, and the wholesale tailor or boot manufacturer is not. A typical instance of the untoward effects of the tariff given in the appendix deserves to be specially quoted. A piece of fancy dress goods 22 inches wide, 50 yards long and weighing over 4 ounces per square yard, if made from cheap material to suit the means of the working class, and costing 6d per yard, would pay duty at the rate of 104 per cent. of the value, while a piece of the same weight and dimensions, but made of more costly material and worth 12d per yard, is charged 69 per cent.

SECOND DIVISION—HEAVY WOOLLENS.

These are the staple produce of the woollen district of Yorkshire, but the replies from all the Chambers agree that the duty has completely put a stop to every direct trade with the United States in these goods.

The duty on every kind of cloth, be it low or fine, cheap or dear, is uniformly 50 cents per pound weight and 35 per cent. of the value.

The great bulk of mixed woollens reported from Yorkshire are worth from 1s to 1s 6d per pound. Taking the average at 1s 4d, the 50 cents weight duty alone amounts to 156 per cent. of the cost; and with 35 per cent. added, the total of the combined duties amounts to 191 per cent. ad valorem.

The subjoined tables show that in many cases the duty amounts to even a much higher per centage.

THIRD DIVISION—LIGHT WOOLLENS.

Light woollens are either composed of wool alone or mixed with cotton, and are used for gentlemen's coats or ladies' cloaks. They are generally made of more expensive material than the heavy woollens.

The weight duty does not bear the same relation to the value which prevents all trade with the States in low fabrics, and, as has been explained before, these light woollen are sold to customers with whom price is no object and fashion all-powerful.

Wherever in the subjoined lists the duties descend to 100 per cent. of the cost the article belongs to this class of goods.

APPENDIX "D"—AN INTERESTING CASE FOR THE BOOT AND SHOE TRADE.

BRADFORD, 6th September, 1877.

Jacob Behrens, Esq., President of Bradford Chamber of Commerce:

I wish to call your attention to the effect of the present fiscal laws of the United States upon an article, in the exportation of which we have been principally engaged. I refer to the article serge de Berri and Lasting, hitherto largely issued for the manufacture of boots and shoes in America (and I presume that this is merely an illustration of every other textile article). The duties levied thereon are 50 cents per pound and 35 per cent. ad valorem. A piece of serge de Berri weighing fourteen pounds and costing 50s. pays duty 30s. 4d. for weight and 17s. 6d. for value, or 47s. 10d. per piece, or about 94 per cent. on cost in this market. Now, mark, the consumer has to pay a profit to the importer, and to the boot and shoe maker, not only on the cost here, but also on the cost there after payment of the duty, rendering the price enormous, to the great detriment of the customer and injury of trade. This duty is levied on an article—I had almost said a raw material—for the manufacture of boots and shoes, in which America employs so many thousands of hands, and in making the machinery for which she beats almost all other nations.

This system has ruined their large export trade, as attested by General Francis A. Walker, chief of the bureau of awards at the Philadelphia International Exhibition, in his Report of the boot and shoe exhibit.

The natural results of such a system have been the gradual strangling of the trade between the two countries, or the transference of what is left into the hands of the smuggler, the briber, or the perjurer, a system which robs the exchequer and impoverishes the consumer. Every respectable house on this side of the Atlantic as well as on the other will be compelled to abandon the trade, and I regret to say that this state of trade has been produced by the high import duties of the United States.

Upon the article buntings which was formerly largely exported from this district to the United States, a duty of 120 per cent. has been put.

The natural result has been that the trade with the country has ceased, the American Government has lost all revenue, and the consumers of that article are paying 50 shillings for what can be bought here for 18s. 6d.

I know of no other means, in reply to the question which has been asked of us, to increase and enlarge the commerce between the two countries than to recommend a large reduction of the import duties in America by the total abolition of the duties on weight or measure and the imposition of such a moderate ad valorem duty as will make fraud not worth risking, and which I am satisfied will in time produce the largest revenue to the Government.

Believe me, yours truly,

(Signed)

WM. BROWN,

Partner in the firm of Stansfeld, Brown & Co.

P.S.—I may state that our agent and friends in Boston write that lastings^s serge de Berri of known makes in this market are sold regularly at 5 to 10 per cent. less than any cash house can import them.

In Appendix "E." the Bradford Chamber of Commerce gives six examples of the absurd inequality of the working of the tariff. Thus the duties on a given case of satin de chine goods worth £67 3s 4d amounts to only £44; while an increase of less than £1 to the value of the goods entails an increase of duties amounting to £10 11s 6d.

Appendix "F." contains a statement from the Huddersfield Chamber of Commerce showing the duties on such articles as red padding, savelist cloth, black sealskin, black doeskin, cheviot coating, worsted tartan, &c., &c., to range from 76 per cent. to 227½ per cent. On flushings the duties would now amount to 360 per cent. if shipments were made at all.

The Dewsbury Chamber of Commerce reports duties on three samples of black and blue "president," to amount to 191, 175, and 160 per cent. On another sample of blue union "president," 217 per cent.

The Batley Chamber of Commerce gives tables showing the duties on pilot cloths and "president" manufactured in that region to amount to from 168 to 228 per cent.

The Heckmondwike Chamber of Commerce gives figures showing how the people of the United States have to pay two or three prices on carpets. We quote an example: "It will be seen that an English tapestry carpet, costing 56 cents here, will by the time it reaches the consumer in the United States, have increased its price to $1.34, or nearly 2½ times its original cost."

The same Chamber of Commerce also testifies that the duty on bed blankets and railway rugs is now prohibitory; thus explaining how the price of blankets to the poor people of the United States has more than doubled since the war.

RECIPROCITY

THE DRAFT TREATY OF 1874.

(From the Toronto Globe, June 23, 1874.)

Her Majesty, the Queen of Great Britain, and the United States of America, being desirous of improving the commerce and navigation between their respective territories and people, and more especially between Her Majesty's possessions in North America and the United States, in such manner as to render the same reciprocally beneficial, have respectively named plenipotentiaries to confer and agree thereupon, that is to say : * * * Who after having communicated to each other their respective full powers found in good and due form, have agreed upon the following articles :—

ARTICLE I.

It is agreed by the high contracting parties that, in addition to the liberty secured to the United States fishermen by the convention between Great Britain and the United States, signed at London on the 20th day of October, 1818, of taking, curing, and drying fish on certain coasts of the British North American Colonies therein defined, the inhabitants of the United States shall have, in common with the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, the liberty for the term of years mentioned in Article XIII. of this Treaty to take fish of every kind, except shell-fish, on the sea-coasts and shores, and in the bays, harbours, and creeks of the Provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward's Island, and of the several islands thereunto adjacent, without being restricted to any distance from the shore, with permission to land upon the said coasts, and shores, and islands, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish ; provided that, in so doing, they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with the British fishermen in the peaceable use of any part of the said coasts in their occupancy for the same purpose. But it is understood that the above-mentioned liberty applies solely to the sea fishery, and that the salmon and shad fisheries, and all other fisheries in rivers and mouths of rivers, are hereby reserved exclusively for British fishermen.

ARTICLE II.

It is agreed by the high contracting parties that British subjects shall have, in common with the citizens of the United States, the liberty for the term of years mentioned in Article XIII. of this Treaty, to take fish of every kind except shell-fish on the eastern sea-coasts and shores of the United States north of the thirty-ninth parallel of north latitude, and on the shores of the several islands thereunto adjacent, and in the bays, harbours, and creeks of the said sea-coasts and shores of the United States, and of the said islands, without being restricted to any distance from the shore, with permission to land upon the said coasts of the United States and of the islands aforesaid, for the purpose of drying their nets and curing their fish ; provided that in so doing they do not interfere with the rights of private property, or with fishermen of the United States in the peaceable use of any part of the said coasts in their occupancy for the same purpose. But it is understood that the above-mentioned liberty applies solely to the sea fishery, and that salmon and shad fisheries, and all other fisheries in rivers and mouths of rivers are hereby reserved exclusively for fishermen of the United States.

ARTICLE III.

It is agreed that the places designated by the Commissioners appointed under the first article of the Treaty between Great Britain and the United States, concluded at Washington on the 5th of June, 1854, upon the coasts of the United States and Her Britannic Majesty's dominions, as places reserved from the common rights of fishing under that Treaty, shall be regarded as in like manner reserved from the common right of fishing under the preceding articles. In case any question should arise between the Governments of Her Britannic Majesty and of the United States as to the common right of fishing in places not thus designated as reserved, it is agreed that a Commission shall be appointed to designate such places, and shall be constituted in the same manner, and have the same powers, duties, and authority as the Commission appointed under the said first article of the Treaty of the 5th of June, 1854.

ARTICLE IV.

It is agreed that the Articles enumerated in Schedules A, B, and C, hereunto annexed, being the growth, produce, or manufacture of the Dominion of Canada, or of the United States, shall, on their importation from the one country into the other, from the first day of July, 1875, to the 30th day of June, 1876 (both included) pay only two-thirds of the duties payable at the date of this Treaty on the importation into such country of such articles, respectively; and from the 1st day of July, 1876, to the 30th day of June, 1877 (both included) shall pay only one-third of such duties; and on and after the 1st day of July 1877, for the period of years mentioned in Article XIII of this Treaty, shall be admitted free of duty into each country respectively.

For the term mentioned in Article XIII. no other or higher duty shall be imposed in the United States upon other articles not enumerated in said Schedules, the growth, produce, or manufacture of Canada, or in Canada upon such other articles the growth, produce, or manufacture of the United States, than are respectively imposed upon like articles the growth, produce, or manufacture of Great Britain or any other country.

And the work engaged to be done in this Article shall be completed by the first day of January, 1880.

ARTICLE VI.

It is agreed that the Government of Canada shall construct on or before the first day of January, 1880, a canal to connect the St. Lawrence River at some convenient point at or near Caughnawaga with Lake Champlain. The dimensions of said canal shall be such as to admit the passage of vessels drawing twelve feet of water, and the locks shall be of not less dimensions than those named in the preceding Article.

And the United States engage to urge upon the Government of the State of New York to cause the existing canal from Whitehall, on Lake Champlain, to Albany to be enlarged, and, if necessary, extended, or another canal or canals to be constructed of equal capacity with the proposed Caughnawaga Canal as herein-before specified, and the navigation of the Hudson River to be improved so as to admit of the passage from Lake Champlain to the lower waters of the Hudson River of vessels drawing twelve feet of water.

ARTICLE VII.

Citizens of the United States may, during the term of years mentioned in Article XIII. of this Treaty, carry in their vessels, cargo and passengers from one Canadian port to another on the great lakes or River St. Lawrence. Reciprocally, inhabitants of Canada, subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, may, during the like period, carry in their vessels cargo and passengers from one port to another of the United States on the great lakes or River St. Lawrence. Citizens of the United States in their vessels, and inhabitants of Canada, subjects of her Britannic Majesty, in their vessels, may, during the like term, carry cargo and passengers from any port of the United States or of Canada on the Red River or the waters connecting therewith to any other port on the said river or waters connecting therewith.

ARTICLE VIII.

It is agreed that for the term of years mentioned in Article XIII of this Treaty, the citizens of the United States shall enjoy the use of the Welland, the St. Lawrence, and other canals in the Dominion of Canada (including the proposed Caughnawaga Canal) on terms of equality with the inhabitants of the Dominion of Canada, and that without interfering with the rights of the Government of Canada to impose such tolls on the aforesaid Canadian canals respectively as it may think fit. The tolls shall be levied in relation to the number of locks in each Canal without any drawback or discrimination, whatever the destination of the vessel or whether one or more canal or canals or part of a canal be passed. And it is also agreed that for the like term of years the inhabitants of Canada shall enjoy the use of the St. Clair Flats Canal on terms of equality with the inhabitants of the United States, and that the navigation of Lake Champlain and of Lake Michigan shall be free and open to the purposes of commerce to the inhabitants of Canada, subject to any laws and regulations of the United States, or of the States bordering thereon respectively, not inconsistent with such free privileges of navigation.

And the United States further engage to urge upon the Governments of the States of New York and of Michigan, respectively, to secure to the inhabitants of Canada the use of the Erie, the Whitehall, the Sault St. Marie Canals, and of any enlarged, or extended, or new canal, or other improvement, connecting Lake Champlain with the lower waters of the Hudson River, which may be made as contemplated in Article VI. on terms of equality with the inhabitants of the United States.

And further, that if the use of the Erie, Whitehall, or other canal connecting Lake Champlain with the lower waters of the Hudson River, and of the Sault St. Marie Canal, be not granted to the inhabitants of Canada on terms of equality with the citizens of the United States, as contemplated in this article, then the use of the proposed Caughnawaga Canal by citizens of the United States as above contemplated shall be suspended and cease until the use of the said canals in the United States shall be secured to the inhabitants of Canada as above contemplated.

ARTICLE IX.

For the term of years mentioned in Article XIII. of this Treaty, vessels of all kinds built in the United States may be purchased by inhabitants of Canada, subjects of Great Britain, and registered in Canada as Canadian vessels ; and reciprocally, vessels of all kinds built in Canada may be purchased by citizens of the United States, and registered in the United States as United States vessels.

ARTICLE XI.

A Joint Commission shall also be established at joint expense and maintained during the continuance of the Treaty to promote the propagation of fish in the inland waters common to both countries, and to enforce the laws enacted for the protection of the fish and fishing grounds.

ARTICLE XII.

It is further agreed that the provisions and stipulations of this Treaty shall extend to the colony of Newfoundland so far as they are applicable. But if the Imperial Parliament, the Legislature of Newfoundland, or the Congress of the United States shall not embrace the colony of Newfoundland in their laws enacted for carrying the foregoing articles into effect, then this article shall be of no effect ; but the omission to make provision by law to give it effect by either of the legislative bodies aforesaid, shall not in any way impair any other article of this Treaty.

ARTICLE XIII.

The Treaty shall take effect as soon as the laws required to carry it into operation shall have been passed by the Imperial Parliament of Great Britain and by the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada on the one hand, and the Congress of the United States on the other. If such legislative assent shall not have been given within — months from the date hereof, then this Treaty shall be null and void. But such Legislative assent having been given, this Treaty shall remain in force for the period of twenty-one years from the date at which it shall come into operation, and further until the expiration of three years after either of the high contracting parties shall have given notice to the other of its wish to terminate the same ; each of the high contracting parties being at liberty to give such notice to the other at the end of the said period of twenty-one years, or at any time afterwards.

ARTICLE XIV.

When the ratifications of this Treaty shall have been exchanged and the laws required to carry it into operation shall have been passed by the Imperial Parliament of Great Britain and by the Parliament of Canada on the one hand, and by the Congress of the United States on the other hand; then Articles XXII., XXIII., XXIV. and XXV. of the Treaty of May 8th, 1871, between Great Britain and the United States, shall become null and void.

ARTICLE XV.

This Treaty shall be duly ratified by Her Britannic Majesty and by the President of the United States, and the ratification shall be exchanged either at Washington or at London, ——— months from the date hereof, or earlier if possible.

RECIPROCITY NEGOTIATIONS

MEMORANDUM BY SIR EDWARD THORNTON, K. C. B., AND HONBLE. GEORGE BROWN, ON THE COMMERCIAL RELATIONS, PAST AND PRESENT, OF THE B. N. A. PROVINCES WITH THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

(From the Toronto Globe, July 23, 1874.)

THE undersigned, Joint Plenipotentiaries of Her Britannic Majesty, with full powers for the negotiation and conclusion of a Treaty with the United States relative to Fisheries, Commerce, and Navigation, deem it fitting that, at the outset of the negotiations with which they have been charged, they should submit for the consideration of the Secretary of State some suggestions in regard to the commercial relations between the United States and the Canadian Dominion which may not be unworthy of attention.

All the figures used in this memorandum are taken from the official documents of the United States Government, except when otherwise stated.

When the British North American Provinces or Canada are spoken of, all the Provinces now comprising the Dominion, and also the Island of Newfoundland, are included therein.

An impartial examination of the commercial relations that have existed between the United States and the British North American Provinces for the last fifty years, cannot fail to establish, we venture to think, beyond all doubt, that the traffic between them has been exceedingly valuable to both countries, but that the United States have, from first to last, reaped greatly the largest advantage from it.

In the twelve years from 1821 to 1832 (both years inclusive) the United States Official Records show that the exports of the United States to the British North American Provinces were of the aggregate value:

In home products, of.....	$30,997,417
In foreign products, of.....	403,909
Total United States exports.....	$31,401,326
And that the entire imports of the United States in the same period from the Provinces, were but.....	7,684,559
Leaving a balance of trade in favour of the United States of no less than.....	$23,716,767

In the thirteen years following the above period (1833 to 1845), the same state of things is found, with a steady increase of the aggregate traffic. The exports of the Republic to the British North American Provinces were :—

Of domestic products	$54,082,537
Of foreign products.....	4,640,332
Total United States exports (1833 to 1845).....	$58,722,869
And the imports of the Republic from the Provinces were but.....	23,356,275
Leaving a balance in favour of the United States of.....	$35,366,594

TRANSPORTATION IN BOND.

In 1846 we enter upon a period when the United States Government, after very many years of earnest effort, succeeded in obtaining from Great Britain a relaxation of the old restrictive navigation laws in regard to the British Colonies. With it came the international drawback system for the encouragement of overland transportation to and from the Atlantic Ocean without payment of duties. Although this measure only extended to the transport of merchandise, it is instructive to observe the immediate and remarkable effect it had on the direct transactions between the Republic and the Colonies. The aggregate imports and exports between the countries immediately rose from $8,074,291, in the year 1845, to the following figures.—

1846—Aggregate Import and Export Trade.....	$9,344,150
1847—“ “ “ “	10,329,470
1848—“ “ “ “	12,029,122
1849—“ “ “ “	10,931,147
1850—“ “ “ “	15,193,497
1851—“ “ “ “	18,708,045
1852—“ “ “ “	16,619,315
1853—“ “ “ “	20,691,360
Total.....	$113,846,106

Thus, while from 1821 to 1832 the aggregate annual traffic between the countries averaged $3,257,153, and from 1833 to 1845, $6,313,780 per annum—under the influence of a more liberal policy the traffic rose, from 1846 to 1853, to no less an average than $14,230,763 per annum.

And the balance of trade still prepondered enormously to the advantage of the United States. In these eight years the Republic exported to the Provinces—

Of home products.....	$55,072,260
Of foreign products.....	22,020,254
Total United States exports (1846 to 1853).....	77,092,514
While the imports of the Republic from the Provinces were but....	36,753,592
Leaving in favour of the United States, on eight years' transactions, the vast balance of.....	$40,338,822

But, in addition to this direct interchange of merchandise, with its great preponderance in favour of the Republic, a large amount of the import and export traffic between Great Britain and the Provinces now began to be carried in bond over the canals and railways of the United States to Atlantic or inland ports, and thence despatched to their ultimate destinations in American ships and steamers—vastly to the gain of the Republic, and without any corresponding advantages to the Provinces.

THE RECIPROCITY TREATY.

The great success that thus attended this first partial experiment of reciprocal liberality in commercial intercourse between the countries led directly and easily to proposals for the much more decided measure of an interchange of the natural products of the two countries free of customs duty. For a number of years the subject was keenly debated in all its bearings; and it is instructive to look back on the record of those discussions, and observe the long list of distinguished American statesmen who were warm advocates of the measure.

The Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 was signed on 5th June of that year, by Mr. Marcy, on behalf of the United States, and by the late Lord Elgin, as representative of Great Britain. Its happy effects were felt instantaneously; and it is only necessary to refer to the speeches and papers of the able men of all parties in both countries who promoted the measure, and to analyze the official returns of its operation while in force, to arrive irresistibly at the conclusion that its results greatly surpassed the most sanguine anticipations of its originators and advocates.

The Treaty may be said to have been thirteen years in operation; for though nominally it began late in 1854 and ended early in 1866, the traffic was pushed with such energy during the months of its operation in these two years, as to place them on an equality with the other years.

To obtain a just appreciation of the value of the traffic between the Republic and the Province during the thirteen years' operation of the Treaty, it is necessary to keep in mind that the Civil War in the States in the last four years of the Treaty's existence enhanced the value of commodities, and so deranged the industrial interests of the Republic as to give the Provinces a temporary advantage in the traffic, forbidding any fair deduction from it as to the ordinary course of trade in times of peace. In one year (1865-66) at the end of the war the exports of British North America to the United States rose, according to the United States official records, to $54,714,383.

However profitable this casual advantage may have been to the Provinces, it can hardly be regarded as an objection to the Treaty that in time of war, when the American husbandman was debarred from tilling his fields, the necessities of life were largely supplied under it without the addition of onerous customs duties and custom house restrictions. Assuredly, had the Treaty not then been in existence, every ton of these supplies, under the pressing urgency of the case, would have found its way across the lines, probably with little reduction of profit to the producer, but great increase of cost to the consumer.

The grand fact remains that, under the operation of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, the aggregate interchange of commodities between the Republic and the Provinces—to promote which the Treaty was concluded—rose from an annual average of $14,230,763 in the previous eight years, to $33,492,754, gold currency, in the first year of its existence; to $42,942,754, gold currency, in the second year of its existence; to $50,339,770, gold, in its third year; and to no less a sum than $84,070,955, at war prices, in its thirteenth year.

And notwithstanding the anomalous character of the circumstances arising from the existence of civil war during so considerable a portion of the Treaty's existence, by which the imports from the Provinces were greatly increased in volume and value, and the exports to the Provinces as naturally reduced in quantity, the balance of trade, during the existence of the Treaty, was largely in favour of the United States. In the thirteen years of its operation, the Provinces purchased from the Republic commodities, according to the United States returns, to the value of $316,180,264, and the Republic purchased from the Provinces $325,726,520, leaving a gross cash balance in favour of the United States of $20,454,246. But the balance was, in fact, much larger than this. During the first ten years of the Treaty, the transactions between the countries showed a clear balance in favour of the United States of $62,013,545. That balance appears, from the United States returns, to have been reduced, by the operations of the following three years, to the amount of $20,454,246, but this arose, no doubt, from the inflated values at which the importations were made under the Treaty during the war—there being no customs duty to necessitate accuracy, and every temptation to over-valuation on the part of the importer. According to the official returns of the several British Provinces (which are accurately kept), the Provinces purchased from the Republic, during the thirteen years in question, commodities to the aggregate value of $363,188,088, gold valuation; and the Republic purchased from the Provinces $267,612,131, in same valuation, leaving, as the sum total of the results of the Treaty of 1854, an aggregate international traffic of $630,800,219, and a gold balance in favour of the Republic of $95,575,957.

TRAFFIC WITH CANADA IN COMPARISON WITH OTHER STATES

The importance of the Canadian Traffic under the Reciprocity Treaty can be most clearly seen, perhaps by a comparison of it with the transactions which the Republic ad with other foreign countries during the same years. The total exports of the United States from 1854 to 1866 (both years inclusive) amounted to upwards of four thousand millions of dollars. Of this vast export traffic :—

England and her possessions took.....	$2,769,974,538
France and her possessions took	453,993,996
Spain and her possessions took.....	265,893,221
Germany took.....	207,308,647
	<hr/>

and all the rest of the world took the balance.

Of the above exports, Canada's share, as we have already seen, was $346,180,264—an amount equal to the aggregate exports taken from the United States in the same years by China, Brazil, Italy, Hayti, Russia and her possessions, Venezuela, Austria, the Argentine Republic, Denmark and her possessions, Turkey, Portugal and her possessions, the Sandwich Islands, the Central American States, and Japan all put together. In marked contrast to this, however, the United States imported from these countries in the same years, to the amount of $538,523,386 leaving a cash balance to be paid to them by the Republic of $192,109,610, while Canada paid over to the States a cash balance of $95,574,957 in gold.

CHARACTER OF TRAFFIC UNDER THE TREATY.

The character of the commodities purchased from the Republic by the Provinces during the existence of the Reciprocity Treaty is also worthy of special note. In the thirteen years of its operation the total purchases by the Provinces of United States home productions and of foreign articles imported by United States merchants, were as follows :—

Animals and their products	$ 35,433,213
Breadstuffs	112,058,473
Other farm products.....	3,242,981
Timber	8,511,488
Manufactures	88,649,787
Miscellaneous	24,044,955
	<hr/>
Total home productions	$271,940,988
Foreign commodities bought from the merchants of the United States and imported into Canada	62,379,718
Total purchases	$634,320,706

From this it will be seen that not less than $151,029,573 of manufactured goods were purchased from the United States by the Provinces under the operation of the Reciprocity Treaty.

TRANSPORTATION TRAFFIC UNDER THE TREATY.

Did nothing more, therefore, than the volume of traffic between the countries and the comparative contributions of each country to it, enter into the question of the relative advantages derived from the treaty by each, no doubt could exist as to the United States having reaped much greater profit from the Treaty of 1854 than the Provinces. But there is another very important branch of the account. The transportation traffic sent to and brought from foreign countries by the Provinces, in bond, over the railways and canals, and in the ocean ships and steamers trading from United States ports, rose under the operation of the Treaty to an importance secondary only to the traffic in domestic productions. Previous to the negotiations of the Treaty this traffic had assumed considerable dimensions ; but the vast increase that occurred under its operation must have drawn very large gains into the coffers of the Republic, and indirect advantages quite as valuable as the direct ones. No official returns of the goods thus passed over the United States seems to have been preserved until the fiscal year 1867-68 ; but from the returns since published we can form some idea of the great profit that must have accrued to the Republic while the Treaty was in force. These returns thus state the values of the foreign exports that passed over the United States in transitu during the past six years.

1868.	Total United States transit traffic	$21,515,604
1869.	“ “	21,095,984
1870.	“ “	23,195,860
1871.	“ “	25,375,037
1872.	“ “	31,385,320
1873.	“ “	40,099,185
Total transit traffic.....			$162,662,996

Of this vast traffic, $155,241,704 consisted of merchandise imported by the Provinces from other countries and carried over United States railways and canals into Canada; and $48,556,557 of it consisted of produce exported abroad from the Provinces via the United States. The fact that these two amounts appear to make unitedly more than the whole aggregate of the United States transit trade, arises from shipments made from one part of Canada to another, and consequently appearing in the list of goods going into the United States, as well as in that of goods sent out from the United States. Nearly the whole of the traffic in transitu of the Republic in these six years was either sent from or sent to the British Provinces. And from its volume in these recent years, we may form some idea of its great extent under the operation of the Treaty, when colonial facilities for transportation were so different from what they now are.

The value of so vast a carrying trade is not easy to arrive at. Dr. Young, the able chief of the United States Bureau of Statistics, recently stated that inward ocean freights on goods “vary from 100 per cent. on (the value of) salt and some other bulky articles to two or three per cent. on dress goods,” and that the “average on merchandise alone is not much less than eight per cent.” Now if the ocean freight on ordinary merchandise is 8 per cent., how greatly more must be the percentage of overland freights; and how infinitely greater must be the percentage on the value of farm produce than on ordinary merchandise! If it is further considered that on the transit traffic to and from Canada, inland and ocean carriage have both to be paid for, and that a large proportion of the commodities are heavy and bulky, it will at once be seen what a fertilizing stream is poured by the merchants of the Dominion over the railways, canals, steamships, commission agents, and port cities of the Republic, even from the limited share of their traffic now sent via the United States, under a policy of severe restriction.

SPECIAL PRIVILEGES UNDER THE TREATY.

Nor was it merely from the vast interchange of commodities and the great carrying trade in bond that the United States reap their golden annual harvest from the Treaty of 1854. It must not be forgotten that by virtue of that Treaty, the Canadian canals and the navigation of the St. Lawrence were thrown open to the ships and commerce of the United States, on precisely the same footing as to those of the Canadian people, who had spent vast sums in their construction. How largely the Republic profited by this concession, the enormous amount of American merchandise passed through the Canadian canals in American bottoms, at tolls so low as to do little more than defray the cost of attendance and the maintenance, the public records of both countries amply establish. The sole return made to the Provinces for this concession was the permission to navigate Lake Michigan, and the promise of the United States Government to urge upon the State Authorities of the Republic to extend to the Provinces the same free use of the American canals as they had extended to the Republic. This promise never bore any fruit.

THE ST. LAWRENCE COAST FISHERIES FREE UNDER THE TREATY.

But the crowning concession enjoyed by the United States, under the conditions of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, was the free use of the priceless coast fisheries of British North America. For this concession the able statesmen who represented the thirteen States in the peace settlement at the close of the revolutionary war, struggled long and earnestly. To secure this much valued possession, all the skill of American diplomatists, persistently employed for three quarters of a century, was exerted in vain. Under the Treaty of 1818, the right to the sea-fisheries of the Gulf of St. Lawrence was resigned to the United States ; but not until 1854 and then only as part of the Reciprocity Treaty, and determinable with it, did they obtain access to the most valuable portion of the fisheries, namely, those within three miles of the coast, bays, and creeks of the Provinces. What the value was to the United States of this concession it would not become us to discuss while an arbitration to determine the compensation to be paid Canada for twelve years further enjoyment of it is pending, under the provisions of the Treaty of Washington. But, as illustrative of the enormous preponderance of advantages reaped by the United States under the Treaty of 1854, we may, perhaps, be permitted to quote one or two extracts from the reports of two Commissioners, specially appointed by the United States' Government to enquire and report on the subject of Reciprocity, as to the value of this one item in the balance of the international account:

"Without participation in the sea-fisheries near the shores of the colonies, our deep sea fisheries in that region will become valueless."—J. D. Andrews' Report, page 35.

"England possesses no nursery for seamen at all equal to her North American colonial trade."—Ibid.

"The average number of French seamen engaged in the cod-fishery [of the Gulf of St. Lawrence] from 1841 to 1850 was 11,500, and the average bounty paid annually was 3,900,000 francs ($780,000) equivalent to $67.60 for each seaman. France trains up in this manner able and hardy seamen for her navy, who would cost the nation much more if they were trained on ships of war."—Ibid.

"The United States tonnage engaged in 1862 in the cod-fishery was 122,863 tons ; in the mackerel fishery, 80,596 tons ; aggregate 203,439 tons. The returns of fish and oil from this tonnage for 1862 considerably exceeded $14,000,000."—E. H. Derby, page 42.

"Seamen (United States) in fisheries in 1862, 28,045. * * * The fisheries break in at least 5,000 new seamen annually. * * * Six hundred sail have fished for mackerel in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Bay of Chaleur, and taken fish to the amount of $4,000,000. Nearly one-fourth of our fishing fleet, with a tonnage of 40,000 to 50,000 tons worth $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 annually ; fish near the the three mile line of the Provinces."—Ibid., page 44.

REPEAL OF THE TREATY.

Such was the Treaty of 1854, which the United States terminated in 1866, on the ground that the advantages from it were all on the side of the Provinces, and against the Republic. Well might the Commissioner of the United States Treasury (Mr. Derby), writing regretfully of the repeal, use these words :—"It quintupled our trade with the Provinces, gave an impulse to public improvement, and utilized the new canals, railways, and other avenues of commerce." And he might as truly have added :—"Had the Provinces retaliated in the same spirit, it would have lost us the enjoyment of the shore fisheries of the Maritime Provinces, the use of the Canadian canals, and the navigation of the St. Lawrence River, all of which we enjoyed without consideration."

Fortunately the Provinces did not act in the same spirit. They thoroughly believed in the practical good sense of the United States people—especially with such a balance sheet to look back upon as the results of the Treaty of 1854 present. They assumed that there were matters existing in 1865-66 to trouble the spirit of American statesmen for the moment, and they waited patiently for the sober second thought which was sure ere long to put all things right.

Immediately on the repeal of the Treaty, customs duties were imposed by the United States on nearly all the articles imported under it from the Provinces. The Canadian tariff was very little changed, and, as will be presently shown, a large preponderance of the exports from the United States into the Dominion are still admitted free of duty. The use of the Canadian canals was continued to American shipping and commerce on precisely the same terms as to those of Canada. The free navigation of the river St. Lawrence was still left open to American craft, and the shore fisheries of the St. Lawrence were thrown open from year to year to American fishermen on payment of a small license fee.

EFFECT IN CANADA OF THE ABROGATION OF THE TREATY.

The industry of Canada had been largely directed to the supply of the American market with commodities for home consumption, as well as for foreign exportation.

and the repeal in 1866 of the Reciprocity Treaty, under which so vast a trade had grown up, rendered imperatively necessary prompt measures to open new markets for the sale of Canadian produce. These measures were at once taken. Under the influence of the formal notice given by the United States in 1865 of their intention to terminate the Treaty, federation of the Provinces, then under discussion, was hurried on, and became a fait accompli within fifteen months after its repeal. The Intercolonial Railway was at once undertaken, at a cost of over $20,000,000, at the national expense, to secure direct connection to and from the Atlantic Ocean, at Halifax and St. John, on Canadian soil; and the last section of that road will shortly be opened for traffic. Commissioners were despatched to the British and other West India Islands, and to South American States, to promote the extension of direct trade between them and the Dominion. The enlargement of the canals, the improvement of the navigation of the lakes and River St. Lawrence, the construction of the Bay Verte Canal, to connect the waters of the Bay of Fundy and the St. Lawrence, the subsidizing of ocean and river steamship lines, and the promotion of the great shipbuilding and fishery interests, all received a new and vigorous impetus.

These measures were attended with remarkable success. Only seven fiscal years have passed since the repeal of the Treaty, but already the loss inflicted by it has been more than made up, and excellent outlets in new directions opened for Canadian commerce; with an increasing annual proportion of the vast carrying trade formerly done for the Provinces by the railways, canals, and steamships of the Republic, transferred to Canadian hands. The traffic between the United States and the Provinces at once fell from an average during the three years before the repeal (according to American official statistics) of nearly $75,000,000 per annum, to an average of $57,000,000 per annum during the first three years following repeal; the Act of Confederation, too, removed from the category of foreign commerce to that of home consumption the large interchange of commodities between the several sections of the Dominion; and the aggregate foreign commerce of the Provinces consequently fell in the first year after the repeal of the Treaty to $139,202,615 from $160,409,455 in the previous year. As will be seen from the following statement, however, the trade of the Dominion speedily recovered from the blow, and the volume of its foreign commerce gradually increased until, in the seventh year from the repeal of the Treaty, it reached the great sum (for a people of four millions) of $235,301,203—being seventy-five millions higher than it had ever reached in any year of the Treaty's existence:—

INJURIOUS EFFECT OF REPEAL ON UNITED STATES TRADE.

The traffic between the United States and the Dominion still retained large proportions, notwithstanding the barriers now raised against it. The aggregate imports and exports, which immediately before the repeal had been (according to the United States returns) $67,909,162 in 1864, $71,374,816 in 1865, and $84,070,955 in 1866, fell immediately after the repeal to $57,627,347 in 1867, $55,624,493 in 1868, and $56,287,546 in 1869. But there the falling off stopped. The volume of traffic then began steadily to reascend, and reached $67,939,125 in 1870, $71,927,077 in 1871, $73,720,512 in 1872, and $82,381,626 in 1873—or within two millions of dollars of the highest point reached during the Treaty's operation. The aggregate traffic between the countries in the seven fiscal years since repeal was $466,807,726.

But large as this volume of trade is, it is instructive to observe how small a proportion of the foreign commerce of Canada this now forms, in comparison with the share of it enjoyed by the United States while the Treaty was in operation. During its thirteen years' existence the aggregate exchange of commodities between the countries averaged forty-six per cent of the entire foreign commerce of the Province; and in its last year the average had reached not less than 52½ per cent of their entire commerce. But since the repeal the case is totally altered. The proportion of the foreign commerce of Canada transacted with the United States from 52½ per cent in 1866 fell, in 1867, to 42 per cent; in 1868, to 41 per cent.; in 1869, to 40 per cent.; in 1870, to 42 per cent.; in 1871, to 40 per cent.; in 1872, to 36 per cent.; and in 1873, to 35 per cent. The average proportion of the commerce of the Provinces has been since the repeal but 38½ per cent., against nearly 50 per cent. in the last five years of the Treaty. Had the Treaty not been abrogated in 1866, and the percentage of Canadian traffic with the States risen no higher than it did under the Treaty, the interchange of commodities between the countries in the last seven years would have aggregated six hundred millions of dollars.

CHANGED CHARACTER OF THE TRAFFIC SINCE REPEAL.

But it is not only in the diminution of commerce that the United States have suffered by the abrogation of the Treaty. The changed character of the traffic now carried on between the countries, in comparison with that formerly done, is also worthy of attentive observation. For example, the consumption of lumber throughout the Republic increases enormously every year, and indeed all over the world. The home supply of it in the United States is fast disappearing; prices go up steadily; and here is the result, since the repeal of the Treaty, on the United States purchases from Canada of that one article:

1866-7	Lumber exports to United States	$6,437,860
1867-8	"	6,727,006
1868-9	"	7,208,046
1869-70	"	8,670,702
1870-1	"	8,264,837
1871-2	"	8,410,917
1872-3	"	11,134,956

And the prices of lumber go up in prompt sympathy with the increasing demand, for the benefit of the lumber operators, who are in no need of sympathy in Canada, whatever they may be in the United States, but to the injury of numerous branches of industry in which wood forms an important element, and to the serious embarrassment of agricultural operations on prairie and other lands.

And so it is with fish, barley, peas, wool, hides, sheep, horses and other articles of Canadian production, which cannot easily be got elsewhere. The demand from the United States is good and constant, notwithstanding the custom house barriers, and the prices keep steadily up.

TRAFFIC DRIVEN FROM UNITED STATES CHANNELS.

But in regard to wheat, flour, provisions, and other articles of which the United States have a surplus as well as Canada, the effect of the duties upon them has been to send through Canadian channels, direct to the maritime provinces, the West India Islands and Great Britain, a vast amount of products that were formerly sold to New York and Boston houses, and shipped to these same markets through American channels. Where two countries alongside of each other have each a large annual surplus of the same article, and that article is in world-wide demand, heavy duties against each other can hardly be effective. The stuff will find its way to market by some route or other.

CANADIANS NOW LARGE EXPORTERS OF WESTERN PRODUCTS.

The change in the other side of the account is equally instructive. The imports of domestic productions of the United States (as distinguished from foreign productions) into Canada, in the four years previous to the abrogation of the Treaty averaged $28,131,802 annually; but on its abrogation they immediately fell to $20,548,704 in 1867; and though they have since gradually recovered so that the imports of the last seven years have averaged $25,649,349 per annum, this was due, not to a demand for home consumption, but to the increasing carrying trade of the Dominion with foreign countries. The necessity of direct intercourse with foreign markets for Canadian products, forced on Canadian merchants by the repeal of the Treaty, led on to a considerable traffic with those markets in American domestic products; hence we find in the imports of Canada from the United States in the last four years, such items as the following:—

	1871-'72	1872-'73.
Meats—fresh, salted and smoked.....	$1,047,272	$1,227,870
Swine	612,006	1,265,808
Flour and meal	2,604,664	2,505,581
Indian Corn.....	3,778,656	4,360,884
Wheat	4,450,404	6,894,217
	$12,493,002	$16,254,360

Large portions of these articles were purchased for foreign exportation, either in the raw state or after being manufactured in Canada. The general progress of this trade, though not consisting solely of American products, is pretty well indicated by the following official returns :

1868.	Exports of foreign goods	$ 4,196,821
1869.	“ “	3,855,800
1870.	“ “	6,527,600

1873.	“ “	9,405,901

The home consumption of American domestic products in the Canada market has therefore largely decreased since the repeal of the Reciprocity Treaty.

BALANCE OF TRADE NOW LARGELY AGAINST THE REPUBLIC.

But the most remarkable effect of the abrogation of the Reciprocity Treaty was the immediate change it produced in the balance of trade between the countries. From the year 1820 up to 1866, a term of forty-six years, there were only (according to the United States Returns) five years in which the annual transactions between the Republic and the Provinces did not show a large cash balance against the Provinces. But four of these five exceptions were merely the result of war prices and the over-valuation usual in free entries. The entire interchange of traffic from 1820 to 1866 showed a cash balance in favour of the United States of $195,219,272. But this state of things came to a sudden end with the expiration of the Treaty : and the balances in favour of the Dominion have since been as follows :—

In 1866-'67.....	$ 9,281,009
1867-'68.....	4,099,949

DIVERSION OF TRAFFIC FROM UNITED STATES OCEAN PORTS.

There is still another feature of the changed relations between the countries well worthy of special note. The time was when the merchants of New York and Boston controlled a large proportion of the import and export traffic of the British Provinces ; but that time passed away with the Reciprocity Treaty. Customs-duties, customs restrictions and examinations, consul's certificates and bonding entries and charges, with all their annoyances and delays, have acted severely against the traffic of these ports in Canadian products, and the railways and canals leading from them, and forced the business into more northern channels.

Mr. E. H. Derby, Special Commissioner of the Treasury, in his official report to Mr. McCulloch, of 1st January, 1866, (page 81) makes this statement :—“ The commerce of Boston affected by the Reciprocity Treaty exceeds $27,000,000 annually, namely :—Imports from and exports to the Maritime Provinces, $6,000,000 ; outfits and returns in deep sea fisheries, $11,000,000 ; imports of wool, grain, and animals across the frontier of Canada, and entered there, with returns, at least, $10,000,000." We have no personal knowledge as to the accuracy of this estimate, but no better authority on the point than Mr. Derby could be desired. But if this was the annual interest of one United States port affected by the Treaty in 1866, when the entire annual foreign commerce of the Province was little more than a hundred millions of dollars, how shall the gain of five or six millions to the U. S. treasury, levied on such necessities of life as beef, flour, coal, lumber, &c., compensate the loss of driving away from the great marts of the Republic the lion's share of a traffic already amounting to two hundred and thirty-five millions per annum ?

COMPARATIVE IMPORTANCE OF CANADIAN TRAFFIC IN SPITE OF RESTRICTIONS.

But with all these barriers and drawbacks in the way of natural and easy traffic, it is in the highest degree instructive to observe how important the commercial transactions between the Republic and Canada remain even now, in comparison with those between the United States and countries more remote. Permit us to analyze the export traffic of the United States for the fiscal year ending 30th June, 1872, in order to show this. In that year the entire export traffic of the Republic with foreign countries, including the trade in transitu was as follows :

Of home products	$549,219 718
Of foreign products	22,769 749
Of foreign products, in transitu , over the railways, &c., of the United States to foreign countries	31,385 320

Total U. S. export traffic, 1871-72.....$603,374 787

Of the vast traffic Great Britain and her colonies, (omitting Canada and Newfoundland) took from the United States :—

Of home products	$329,224,701
Of foreign products	8,344,872
Of goods in transitu	3,844,332
	<hr/> $341,489,905

Remaining export traffic.....$261,884,882

Of this remaining traffic, the B. N. A. Provinces took
Of home products	$27,774,091
Of foreign products	4,982,989
Of goods in transitu	24,098,114

Total B. N. A. Provinces	$56,857,194
Germany took	43,483,003
France and her possessions	34,704,730 1
Spain and her possessions.....	27,577,792
	<hr/> $162,622,719

And all the rest of the world.....$99,262,163

From these figures, it will be seen that, in the year 1871-2, Great Britain and her Colonies (including Canada) took over 66 per cent. of the entire export traffic of the United States, and all the rest of the world but 34 per cent.

It will also be seen that, in that year, the Canadian Dominion and Newfoundland took $13,874,191 more of the export traffic of the United States than did any country in the world outside of the British Empire : that she took $22,152,564 more of it than France and all her possessions, and more than double the amount taken by Spain and all her possessions.

A further analysis of the foreign commerce of the United States shows that in the same year the export traffic from the United States to the Dominion exceeded the entire exports of the United States to the Chinese Empire, the Russian Empire, Brazil, Mexico, Italy, Japan, Hayti, Venezuela, Denmark and her possessions, the Central American States, the Austrian Empire, the Argentine Republic, the Turkish Empire, the Sandwich Islands, Sweden, Norway, Liberia, and Greece, all put together. The total export traffic of the United States to these twenty countries in home products, foreign goods, and goods in transitu being $56,663,359, while that to Canada was $56,857,194.

A continued analysis of the United States official returns shows that while Canada in 1871-72 thus swelled the export sales of the domestic and foreign goods of the United States, and the carrying trade of their ocean fleet and railways and canals to an equal extent with the above twenty countries, the United States took in that year from Canada in return but $40,061,432, of which $4,614,502 was gold and silver, $1,180,790 goods of United States production returned to the States from Canada, and $691,299 effects of immigrants passing through Canada into the United States. But, on the other hand, while the twenty countries above named took, as above stated, but $56,663,358 of the export tariff of the United States, their import traffic into the United States was no less than $108,377,613—of which only $7,218,620 was gold.

COMPARATIVE DUTIES IN THE UNITED STATES AND DOMINION.

Again : of the entire purchases by Canada from the United States in 1871-'72 of home and foreign products (excluding the traffic in transitu from the comparison,) articles to the value of \$20,710,582 were admitted free of duty, and only on \$12,048,548 was any duty paid. The total amount of duty levied was \$2,216,215, or an average per centage on Canada's entire importations from the States (free and dutiable) of that year of only 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. On the other hand, of the purchases by the United States from Canada in the same year, the articles admitted free of duty were to the value of but \$9,329,881, and those subjected to duty \$31,631,551. Indeed, as there were included among the free importations \$4,619,502 of gold and silver coin and bullion, \$1,180,790 of United States productions returned to the States, and \$686,800 of effects of immigrants passing through Canada into the States, the free importations of merchandise from Canada by the United States were in reality but \$2,842,789, against \$31,631,555 on which customs duties were levied to somewhere about 25 per cent. on the entire importations of the year.

SAME FACTS DEMONSTRATED IN 1873.

And the same state of things is found in the year ending 30th June, 1873. The declared value of the entire export traffic of the United States with foreign countries was as follows :—

Of home products.....	$649,132,563
Of foreign products.....	28,149,511
Of foreign products passing in transitu over the railways and canals of the States to foreign countries.....	40,099,185
Total United States export traffic 1872-73.....	$706,949,259

Of this vast export traffic Great Britain and her colonies received from the United States :—

Of home products.....	$420,939,283
Of foreign products.....	18,639,171
Of foreign goods brought over the railways and canals of the States.....	33,071,529
	<hr/> 472,649,983
Balance to the rest of the world.....	$204,299,276

Of the above great amount of traffic taken from the United States by Great Britain and her colonies, Canada took :—

Of home products.....	$34,368,819
Of foreign products.....	4,203,745
Of goods imported over the railways and canals of the United States.....	26,784,184
Total export traffic of the United States to Canada.....	<hr/> $65,356,740

Germany's share was	68,724,421
France and her possessions took	36,083,260
Spain and her possessions took.....	29,257,020
And all the rest of the world took	100,134,468

Great Britain and her possessions, therefore, took 67 per cent. of the entire export traffic of the United States for 1872-'3, and all the rest of the world but 33 per cent.

With the exception of Germany (whose traffic exceeded that of the Dominion by only $3,367,681), Canada in this year was the largest consumer of the United States outside the British Empire. She took $29,273,470 of the United States export traffic more than was taken by France and her possessions; more than double what was taken by Spain and her possessions; and more than the Russian Empire, Japan, Italy, Brazil, Mexico, Hayti, Peru, the Argentine Republic, Venezuela, Sweden, Norway, Denmark and her possessions, Chili, China, Uruguay, the Austrian Empire, the Turkish Empire, the Central American States, Portugal and her possessions, the Sandwich Islands, Liberia, and Greece, all put together. These twenty-two countries took in all $64,901,145 of the export traffic of the United States, of which $42,397,315 was gold, while Canada alone took $65,356,740, of which only $4,269,181 was gold.

On the other hand, the United States in the same year imported from Canada but $43,809,070, of which $6,159,538 was gold, $1,211,155 products of the United States returned from Canada to the United States, and $729,985 effects of immigrants passing through Canada into the United States. The actual importation of Canadian merchandise was therefore but $35,708,392, while the twenty-two countries above named, whose share of the United States export traffic of the year was but $64,901,145, including gold, or $52,593,830 excluding it, sent into the United States in the same year, no less than $131,101,423, of which but $2,104,393 was gold. The "balance of trade" for the years 1872-'73, therefore, was $52,593,360, of export traffic from the United States into these twenty-two countries, and $128,997,030 of imports into the United States from them—or $76,303,200 against the United States.

And the contrast is even more marked when the United States customs duties on Canadian products are compared with those on the products of other countries whose commerce is of infinitely less moment than that of Canada. In the year 1872-'73, of the \$35,708,392 of merchandise imported by the United States from Canada, only \$4,334,285 was admitted free of duty, and on the remaining amount of \$31,374,107 duties were levied to somewhere about 25 per cent. on the entire importations from Canada of that year. Canada, on the other hand, on her importations from the United States the same year, admitted merchandise to the value of \$22,016,690 entirely free of duty, and levied duties only on \$16,555,866, to the amount of but \$2,923,795, or $8\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on the entire importations of merchandise for the year. How different was it with the twenty-two countries above named. Of their importations into the United States, \$102,501,338 were received free of duty, and only on \$29,200,085 was any duty charged.

It is not for us to criticize in any way the manner in which the United States choose to impose their duties. We merely mention these things to remind you of the disadvantageous position Canada occupies in her transactions with the Republic in comparison with that of other countries whose transactions are not to be compared in extent or profit with those of the British Provinces.

When, with all these facts before them, Her Majesty's advisers invite the Government of the United States to reconsider the whole commercial relations of the Republic and the Dominion, with a view to placing them on a friendly and durable basis of reciprocal advantage, the question naturally presents itself, how it comes that having prospered so well since the repeal of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, Canada now seeks for its restoration. The answer is as natural as the question. The population of the United States is forty millions, and that of the Dominion but four millions. The boundary between them is for the most part but a surveyor's line, often unknown even to those who live beside it; and it is of the utmost importance to Canada that common interests and mutual good will should exist between the countries. And what so conducive to this end as commercial intercourse generously carried on and mutually profitable? The people of Canada are not ignorant that a market near at hand is better than a distant one; and good as their present markets are, they would gladly have the old one in addition. They comprehend the barrier that custom-house restrictions throw in the way even of the existing traffic, and they seek to have these withdrawn. They are proud of their own St. Lawrence route, and intend to improve it to the uttermost for the benefit of the great West and their own; but would gladly use the ocean ports and other channels of commerce of the Republic, when freights and fares and friendly reciprocity draw them in that direction. And very great as have been the advantages always accruing to the United States from reciprocity, the Canadians can find only cause of hearty rejoicing at that, so long as they themselves continue to enjoy that moderate degree of prosperity with which Providence has blessed them. There is no mystery, no arriere pensee, in their desire that the commercial relations of the Republic and the Dominion should be placed on the most kindly and unfettered and mutually advantageous basis consistent with their respective existing obligations and with that connection with Great Britain which the Dominion so happily enjoys.

It was with these views, and in this spirit, that the Canadian Administration availed itself of the opportunity presented by the twenty-second Article of the Treaty of Washington to represent to Her Majesty's Government the advantage that would accrue to both countries by the substitution of a satisfactory Commercial Treaty in lieu of the money compensation to be paid (under arbitration) by the United States, for twelve years' enjoyment of the coast fisheries of the Dominion. It was felt that if the large value placed by the Canadian people on their fisheries were not reasonably compensated by the results of the arbitration, a feeling of dissatisfaction might be engendered in the Provinces, not conducive to international harmony; and that if, on the other hand, an award were made equal to the confident anticipations of the Provinces, the good feeling restored in the United States by the Treaty of Washington might be sensibly impaired. To merge the matter in a general measure of mutual commercial concessions for the mutual advantage of both parties, and with injury or injustice to neither, seemed the fitting conclusion to be arrived at by the Government of two great nations.

Her Majesty's Ministers were pleased to adopt the suggestion of the Canadian Government, and the matter having been brought under the attention of the Secretary of State, and through you, Sir, to the notice of the President of the United States, a friendly response was at once received, and the necessary measures instituted for opening formal negotiations.

In the interview which we had the honour to be favoured with by you at the State Department on the 28th March, we stated to you that Her Majesty's Government was prepared to accept a renewal of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 as a substitute for the arbitration provision of the Washington Treaty, in reference to the Canadian Coast Fisheries.

You thereupon suggested an enlargement of the scope of the Treaty, and we asked in what manner you would propose to enlarge it.

You replied that you had no proposition to make, but that you suggested, as topics for discussion, the enlargement of the Canadian canals, so as to facilitate the transportation of the products of the great Western States to the Atlantic seaboard; and also the addition of certain classes of manufactures to the free list of the old Treaty.

We then stated that we were prepared to enter into an agreement for the enlargement of the Canadian canals.

In regard to the addition of certain classes of manufactures to the free list under the old Treaty, we reminded you that the revenue of the Canadian Dominion was largely obtained from a 15 per cent. ad valorem duty on manufactured goods, and that any articles made free in Canada under agreement with any foreign country must be made free to Great Britain. But we added that the Government of Canada was desirous to afford every facility for the encouragement of extended commercial relations between the Republic and the Dominion, in the belief that nothing could tend more to their mutual advantage, not only in a pecuniary sense, but as tending to foster and strengthen those friendly feelings that ought eminently to prevail between two peoples mainly derived from the same origin, speaking the same language, and occupying the geographic position towards each other of the United States and Canada. We convey to you the assurance of the Canadian Government that acting in this spirit, and in the confidence that we would be met in the same spirit by the Government of the Republic, the assent of Canada will be most heartily given to any measure calculated to promote the free and fair interchange of commodities, to reduce the cost of transportation, or conduce to the joint advantage of the two countries so that it be not seriously prejudicial to existing industrial interests of the Canadian people.

In the spirit of this assurance, we invited you to suggest for discussion the classes of manufactures that you would desire to have embraced in the new Treaty. This you declined to do; but you urged that we should indicate the enlargements of the old Treaty likely to be acceptable to both countries. Without acquiescing in the propriety of this course, we yielded to your wishes, and now proceed to fulfil our promise to do so.

We propose that the enjoyment of the Canadian coast fisheries shall be conceded to the United States during the continuance of the new Treaty, in the manner and on the conditions provided under the Washington Treaty, except those in regard to the payment of money compensation for the privilege.

We propose that during the continuance of the Treaty the coasting trade of Canada and the United States shall be thrown open to the vessels of both countries on a footing of complete reciprocal equality.

We propose that the Canadian canals, from Lake Erie to Montreal, be enlarged forthwith, at the expense of Canada, so as to admit the passage of vessels 260 feet in length, with 45 feet beam, with a depth equal to the capacity of the lake harbours.

We propose that, during the continuance of the Treaty, all the Canadian canals, and the Erie, Whitehall, Sault Ste. Marie, and Lake St. Clair canals, in the United States, shall be thrown open to the vessels, boats, and barges of both countries on the same terms and conditions to the citizens of both countries; and that full power be given to tranship cargo from ships or steamers into canal boats at any canal entrance, and also to tranship from boats into ships or steamers at any canal outlet.

The free navigation of the St. Lawrence River having been conceded for ever by Great Britain to the United States under the Washington Treaty, but the free navigation of Lake Michigan having been conceded for ten years only by the United States to Great Britain under the same Treaty, we propose that both concessions be placed on the same footing, free from restrictions as to reporting at any port in the United States other than the port of destination.

We propose that during the continuance of the Treaty vessels of all kinds, built in the United States or Canada, may be owned and sailed by the citizens of the other, and be entitled to registry in either country, and to all the benefits thereto pertaining.

We propose that a Joint Commission shall be formed and continued during the operation of the Treaty, for deepening and maintaining in thoroughly efficient condition the navigation of the Rivers St. Clair and Detroit, and Lake St. Clair, on whichever side of the river the best channel shall be found; the expense to be defrayed jointly by the contracting parties, by contributions corresponding to the commerce carried on in these waters by them respectively.

We propose that a Joint Commission shall be formed, at joint expense, and maintained during the operation of the new Treaty, for securing the erection and proper regulation of all light houses on the great lakes common to both countries, necessary to the security of the shipping thereon.

We propose that a Joint Commission shall be formed at joint expense, and maintained during the continuance of the Treaty, to promote the propagation of fish in the inland waters common to both countries, and to enforce the laws enacted for the protection of the fish and fishing grounds.

We propose that citizens of either country shall be entitled, during the continuance of the Treaty, to take out Letters Patent for new discoveries in the other country on the same footing as if they had been citizens of that country.

We propose that the best method of discountenancing and punishing illicit trade between the countries shall be the subject of consideration and co-operation by the customs authorities of the two countries.

That in case a Treaty of Commercial Reciprocity should not have been concluded before the end of the present session of Congress, the right of adjudication of the claim of Canada to compensation for the fisheries under Articles XXII. to XXV. of the Treaty of Washington, would in no degree be waived, and that in that event the fulfilment of the stipulation contained in those Articles would be immediately proceeded with.

GEO. BROWN.

THE RECIPROCITY NEGOTIATIONS.

MR. BROWN'S SPEECH IN THE SENATE.

(From the Toronto Globe, March 8th, 1875.)

In the Canadian Senate, on Monday, February 22nd, 1875:—

Hon. GEORGE BROWN rose and said,

Hon. gentlemen, in rising to make the motion of which I have given notice, I am sure you will all feel that it is right and fitting, and will be expected by the country, that I should take this earliest opportunity of laying before the House such a statement of the recent negotiations between the United States Government and Great Britain, in regard to the commercial reciprocity between the United States and Canada, may be in the public interest, and befitting my position. I have the more pleasure in doing so because I feel that in dealing with this matter before the Senate, I shall be sustained by the hon. gentlemen who compose this body in taking an enlarged view of the whole question, in leaving aside many frivolous criticisms that have been made by political partisans, and in contending that because a commercial treaty is very advantageous for one party, it does not follow that it may not be equally good for the other. It is very easy to fancy things that might advantageously have been included or omitted in any such arrangement—but it must be always borne in mind that, when two parties sit down to make a bargain the result arrived at can not be what each desires to obtain, but what both will consent to. The merit or demerit of every such compact must therefore be tested by looking at it in its bearings as a whole, and not by minute dissection of minor points. I shall not waste time by entering into any elaborate argument as to the advantages which must flow from throwing down the barriers in the way of international commerce between two countries so contiguous to each other as are the United States and this Dominion. We have ample proof of this in the commercial history of Great Britain since the union of the three kingdoms. We have it still more markedly in the great material results directly flowing from the free interchange of products between the several States of the neighbouring Republic. And nowhere can be found a more gratifying illustration of the grand results that flow from commercial freedom than we have in the progress of our own Dominion since the accomplishment of Confederation. Though the customs barriers against inter-traffic between the B. N. A. Provinces have only been removed since July, 1867, the united foreign commerce of the Provinces has risen from an annual average for thirteen years before Confederation of $115,000,000, to the enormous amount in the seventh year after it, of two hundred and forty millions of dollars. Twenty-five years ago the subject of commercial reciprocity was, I believe, quite as well if not better understood by the people of Canada than it is now. It is twenty-one years since the Treaty of 1854 went into operation; but it took six years to negotiate it, and during that time the people of the Provinces became thoroughly conversant with the various advantages which flow from such arrangements; and if the statesmen who conducted the negotiations of those years were present to-day, they would hear with astonishment that any member of this chamber entertained a doubt as to the enormous advantage which must accrue to both countries from the consummation of such a Treaty as that which has been recently discussed. It is only nine years since the old Treaty of 1854 was brought to a close by the action of the United States Government. The wonderful success which attended that Treaty is shown by the fact that the interchange of traffic between the United States and the British North American Provinces, during the thirteen years of its continuance increased from $33,000,000 in the year immediately preceding that in which the Treaty went into operation, to no less than $84,000,000 in 1866—the year in which it was repealed. Since 1866 there have been several negotiations with the United States for the renewal of the old Treaty. I will briefly refer to each of them, not for the purpose of drawing invidious comparisons,—for I hope nothing will cross my lips to-day to excite party feeling—but simply for the purpose of showing clearly the past history and present position of the Reciprocity question. Such questions as this, should, I think, be regarded from a higher point than that of mere partisanship. We are all alike concerned in the prosperity of our foreign commerce, and in securing good relations with our powerful neighbours—and to these ends we should all heartily contribute whatever party may be in power, or charged with the negotiations. In the negotiations of 1865-6 for a renewal of the Treaty, offers were made to the American Government by our then Finance Minister, Sir A. T. Galt, which in my opinion ought not to have been made. The Government then existing in Canada was the Coalition Government, formed in 1864 for the special purpose of carrying out Confederation of the whole British North American Provinces. I was a member of that Government—and, as is well known, it was in consequence of the policy adopted by my colleagues in the conduct of the reciprocity negotiations that I felt compelled to resign my position as President of the Executive Council. I resigned because I felt very strongly that though we in Canada derived great advantages from the Treaty of 1854, the American people derived still greater advantages from it. I had no objection to that—and was quite ready to renew the old Treaty, or even to extend it largely on fair terms of reciprocity. But I was not willing to ask for renewal as a favour to Canada—I was not willing to offer special inducements for renewal without fair concessions in return—I was not willing that the canals and inland waters of Canada should be made the joint property of the United States and Canada, and be maintained at their joint expense. I was not willing that the customs and excise duties of Canada should be assimilated to the prohibitory rates of the United States—and very especially was I unwilling that any such arrangement should be entered into with the United States, dependent on the frail tenure of reciprocal legislation, repealable at any moment at the caprice of either party. I firmly believed that good as the Reciprocity Treaty had been for Canada—in the event of repeal we had a commercial policy of our own open to us for adoption not greatly inferior to that we would be deprived of—and unless we got a treaty for a definite term of years, and on conditions of fair reciprocity, without such embarrassing entanglements as were proposed, I was willing that the Treaty of 1854 should be repealed, and each country left to follow its own course. My colleagues determined to proceed in the manner I deprecated; I could not be responsible for such a policy; and, to avoid responsibility for it, I resigned office. The Government sent deputies to Washington to obtain, if possible, legislative reciprocity—they did all they could to obtain it, but without success, and the Treaty of 1854 came to an end on the 17th of March, 1866. Honourable gentlemen, I have not changed my opinions from what they were in December, 1865. I still believe that Canada largely profited by the Treaty of 1854, but that the Americans profited by it still more; and we all know now—for we have tested it—that Canada has a commercial policy of her own, but little, if at all inferior to that she was deprived of in 1866. Notwithstanding this, I am still strongly in favour of a commercial treaty with the United States for a definite number of years—and so long as it was just and profitable to Canada, I should be all the better pleased the more profitable it proved to our American friends. It is always well to have two strings to one's bow—it cannot possibly be injurious to secure access to a market of forty millions of people at the price of permitting our own people to buy some of their wares from them free of customs duties. Treaties of the comprehensive character of that proposed with the United States ought not to be—cannot be—adjusted by ounce scales. By the removal of all artificial barriers in the way of a fair exchange of the products of industry—both parties must benefit. No man sells unless he benefits by doing so, and no one buys unless he finds advantage in it. And who shall tell when two countries throw open their respective markets to each other—which of them derives most advantage from the arrangement? It takes years of practical experience to obtain data for such a comparison—and the ramification of commercial interchanges are so far-reaching and so various and complicated that it is hardly possible to judge with accuracy on which side the balance turns. More than one effort was made by the late Government for the renewal of the old Treaty between 1866 and 1869. In 1869 formal negotiations were entered into with the American Government, and the projet of a treaty was presented for discussion. The negotiations continued from July 1869 to March, 1870. This projet included the cession for a term of years of our fisheries to the United States; the enlargement and enjoyment of our canals; the free enjoyment of the navigation of the St. Lawrence River; the assimilation of our customs and excise duties; the concession of an import duty equal to the internal revenue taxes of the United States; and the free admission into either country of certain manufactures of the other. This negotiation ended abruptly in March, 1870—but it is instructive to observe, and I refer to it for the purpose of pointing out that, from the repeal of the old Treaty in 1866, up to the recent negotiations, the Government of Canada has always held the most liberal views as to the considerations that might be included in a treaty with the United States. The negotiation of 1870 was soon followed by the High-Joint Commission, nominally for the adjustment of our fishery disputes, but in reality for the settlement of the Alabama embroglio. We all know what was the cost to Canada of that negotiation. The fisheries of the St. Lawrence went from us for twelve years. The navigation of the St. Lawrence was presented to the United States in perpetuity. The use of our canals was ceded to them for twelve years. And to show exactly the position to which the relations of the two countries were then reduced, it will not be deemed infitting that I should read a few short extracts from the official Protocols of the High-Joint Commissioners. . And first as to our invaluable sea-coast Fisheries

The question of the fisheries was discussed at the Conference of the 6th March, 1871, when the British Commissioners stated that "they considered that the Reciprocity Treaty of the 5th June, 1854, should be restored in principle. The American Commissioners declined to assent to a renewal of the former Reciprocity Treaty." They said: "That that Treaty had proved unsatisfactory to the people of the United States, and consequently had been terminated by notice from the Government of the United States, in pursuance of its provisions." Its renewal "was not in their interest, and would not be in accordance with the sentiments of their people."

At conferences held on the 7th, 20th, 22nd and 25th of March, the American Commissioners stated:—"That if the value of the inshore fisheries could be ascertained, the United States might prefer to purchase, for a sum of money, the rights to enjoy in perpetuity the use of these inshore fisheries in common with British fishermen, and mentioned $1,000,000 as the sum they were prepared to offer. The British Commissioners replied that this offer was, they thought, wholly inadequate, and that no arrangement would be acceptable of which the admission into the United States, free of duty, of fish, the produce of the British fisheries, did not form a part; adding that any arrangement for the acquisition by purchase of the inshore fisheries in perpetuity was open to grave objection." * * * "During these discussions, the British Commissioners contended that these inshore fisheries were of great value, and that the most satisfactory arrangement for their use would be a reciprocal tariff arrangement and reciprocity in the coasting trade. The American Commissioners replied that their value was over-estimated; that the United States desired to secure their enjoyment not for their commercial or intrinsic value, but for the purpose of removing a source of irritation, and that they could hold out no hope that the Congress of the United States would give its consent to such a tariff arrangement as was proposed, or to any extended plan of reciprocal free admission of the products of the two countries. But that, inasmuch as one branch of Congress had recently more than once expressed itself in favour of the abolition of duties on coal and salt, they would propose that coal, salt, and fish be reciprocally admitted free, and that" . . . "they would further propose that lumber be admitted free from duty, from and after the 1st of July, 1874." The British Commissioners, on the 17th of April, stated that this offer was "regarded as inadequate; that Her Majesty's Government considered that free lumber should be granted at once, and that the proposed tariff concessions should be supplemented by a money payment. The American Commissioners then stated that they withdrew the proposal which they had previously made of the reciprocal free admission of coal, salt, and fish, and of lumber, after July 1st, 1874." They expressed their willingness "to concede free fish and fish oil as an equivalent for the use of the inshore fisheries, and to make the arrangement for a term of years; that they were of opinion that free fish and fish-oil would be more than an equivalent for those fisheries; but that they were also willing to agree to a reference to determine that question and the amount of any money-payment that might be found necessary to complete an equivalent." The British Commissioners, on 18th April, accepted this proposal, and articles XVIII to XXV thereanent were agreed to.

"The British Commissioners proposed to take into consideration the question of opening the coasting trade of the lakes reciprocally to each party—which was declined."

"The British Commissioners proposed to take into consideration the reciprocal registration of vessels as between the Dominion of Canada and the United States—which was declined."

At the Conference on the 23rd March, the American Commissioners stated that:—"Unless the Welland Canal should be enlarged so as to accommodate the present course of trade, they should not be disposed to make any concessions, &c. . . . At the Conference on the 27th March the "proposed enlargement of the Canadian canals was further discussed. It was stated on the part of the British Commissioners that the Canadian Government were now considering the expediency of enlarging the capacity of the canals on the River St. Lawrence, and had already provided for the enlargement of the Welland Canal, which would be undertaken without delay."

Honourable gentlemen would see by these extracts from the official records of the High-Joint Commissioners how very humble a position in the eyes of the Commissioners Canada held as a negotiator with the United States for reciprocal commercial advantages; and to show the effect of the concessions made by that Commission I will now read from a speech made by Sir A. T. Galt, in the Canadian House of Commons, on 24th February, 1871, in reference to the appointment of that Commission, and the great danger that serious injury might be done by it to Canadian interests. Sir Alex. Galt used the following language:—

"The fisheries were of paramount importance to us. They meant an important source of employment and trade to us, and a field for the training up of seamen. They have intrinsic merits also. They constituted valuable means of commercial exchange with the United States—means of securing useful trading equivalents from our neighbours. It was the way we dealt with the fisheries and navigation of the St. Lawrence, upon which depended our future advantage and superiority with the United States, in negotiating any commercial Convention. If we made an improper use of them—if we lost those advantages—we should be placed in a position of inferiority, having nothing to offer for enviable opportunities."

Sir Alexander Galt wound up his speech by moving the following as one of a series of resolutions, earnestly deprecating interference by the Commission with the territorial rights of the people of Canada :—

“That this House has always been, and now is, prepared to concede the most free and unrestricted use of the fisheries and inland navigation to the United States, upon receiving as an equivalent therefor, complete compensation in the modification of the United States commercial system, directed to the more free and liberal interchange of the products of labour in the two countries.

“That the concession to the United States of the freedom of the fisheries and of the St. Lawrence, without compensation, would place Canada in a most disadvantageous position for future negotiations, by depriving her of the means of offering any adequate equivalent for those concessions she is desirous of obtaining from that nation.”

Other negotiations took place after the Treaty of Washington was signed, but to these it is not now necessary to refer. Such then, honourable gentlemen, was the position of the Reciprocity question when Sir John Macdonald's Government resigned and the present Administration came into power. And to show the light in which the right honourable gentleman who leads the Opposition in the House of Commons then regarded the situation, I will now read from a speech of that gentleman, made in the other Chamber in March, 1874, when the announcement was made to Parliament that I had been associated with Sir Edward Thornton in the renewal of negotiations :

“His hon. friend from West Toronto had thrown out a remark which would discourage the negotiation at Washington, because he had stated that the old Reciprocity Treaty, if they obtained that, would not give satisfaction to the country, as something more was wanted. Now, if they were only to be consulted in making such a treaty, they could put in what they thought proper; but there were two sides to the question, and what our negotiator had to think of was, not whether we should get all we required, but to get as much as possible. He should be very glad to see Canada get the old Reciprocity Treaty. He had no hopes that we would succeed in getting it in its entirety, but if the hon. gentleman made an approximation to it he should be exceedingly glad. If they could protect the salt, wool, and timber interests, so much the better, and if they could open the market still more, so much the greater gain for Canada. They should not scan too much the concessions made on the part of the United States, so long as our concessions were not too great on the other side.”

The right hon. gentleman, at the very moment when the men who had relieved him of the cares of office were about opening negotiations at Washington, might well have omitted so inconsiderate a statement as that even a small portion of the old treaty would be acceptable to Canada, in exchange for what he (Sir John A. Macdonald) had left it in our power to offer to the United States. I cannot but think it was exceedingly wrong that such a statement should have been made, with the certain knowledge that it would be carried to Washington, and be used there in depreciating the value of our concessions to the Americans. While agreeing with both the hon. gentlemen from whose speeches I have read as to the injurious influence of the Washington Treaty concessions on our position as negotiators with the Republic, I entirely dissent from them in their assumption that, apart from the use of our great sea fisheries and the free navigation of the St. Lawrence, we have not commercial advantages to offer to the Americans quite equal in value to any we seek from them. I venture to think that this error has tinged all their negotiations at Washington, and that a close inquiry as to the value to the United States of the commercial traffic alone between the Republic and the British Provinces for a long series of years past would show it to have greatly surpassed in importance and profit any other branch of their foreign commerce, except their direct trade with the British Isles. I have never doubted that our neighbours, if they did not already recognize this fact, would come ere long to acknowledge it—and that the value of the vast carrying trade they derive from us, of the great saving in cost of transportation realized from the free use of our internal navigation, and of their lucrative enjoyment of our Atlantic Coast fisheries, would come home to them more clearly as the settlement loomed nearer in the distance, that must be made, and cannot be evaded some seven or eight years hence, when the concessions of the High-joint Commissioners shall come to an end. It was in this belief that the present Canadian Government re-opened negotiations at Washington—not as has been diligently asserted by their political opponents, with hat in hand, but in the frank, independent attitude of men who asked no favours, but believed they had ample equivalents to offer for all they sought to obtain. The time of their going to Washington was not of their selection—they had to go. The 22nd and 23rd articles of the Washington Treaty rendered it absolutely necessary that they should do so. Let me read the words :—

“ARTICLE XXII.—Inasmuch as it is asserted by the Government of Her Britannic Majesty that the privileges accorded to the citizens of the United States under Article XVIII of this Treaty are of greater value than those accorded by Articles XIX and XXI of this Treaty to the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, and this assertion is not admitted by the Government of the United States ; it is further agreed that Commissioners shall be appointed to determine, having regard to the privileges accorded by the United States to the subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, as stated in Articles XIX and XXI of this Treaty, the amount of any compensation which, in their opinion, ought to be paid by the Government of the United States to the Government of Her Britannic Majesty in return for the privileges accorded to the citizens of the United States under Article XVIII of this Treaty ; and that any sum of money which the said Commissioners may so award shall be paid by the United States Government, in a gross sum, within twelve months after such award shall have been given.”

“ARTICLE XXIII.—The Commissioners referred to in the preceding Article shall be appointed in the following manner, that is to say : One Commissioner shall be named by Her Britannic Majesty, one by the President of the United States, and a third by Her Britannic Majesty and the President of the United States conjointly ; and in case the third Commissioner shall not have been so named within a period of three months from the date when this Article shall take effect, then the third Commissioner shall be named by the representative at London of His Majesty the Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary. In case of death, absence or incapacity of any Commissioner, or in the event of any Commissioner omitting or ceasing to act, the vacancy shall be filled in the manner hereinbefore provided for making the original appointment, the period of three months in case of such substitution being calculated from the date of the happening of the vacancy.”

“The Commissioners so named shall meet in the city of Halifax, in the Province of Nova Scotia, at the earliest convenient period after they have been respectively named, and shall before proceeding to any business, make and subscribe a solemn declaration that they will impartially and carefully examine and decide the matters referred to them to the best of their judgment, and according to justice and equity ; and such declaration shall be entered on the record of their proceedings.”

“Each of the High Contracting Parties shall also name one person to attend the Commission as its agent, to represent it generally in all matters connected with the Commission.”

Mr. Rothery, a distinguished English juris-consult and Registrar of the High Court of Admiralty, arrived in Canada shortly before the late Government left office in 1873, as the duly appointed agent of the British Government to get up the case of Canada in the Fishery arbitration provided for by these articles. I know nothing of what passed between either the late or the present Government and Mr. Rothery, while he was at Ottawa ; but in passing through Toronto on his way to Washington, Mr. Rothery saw several prominent public men with a view to acquiring information as to the value of our sea-coast fisheries and the best mode of collecting evidence to sustain our claim, and among them I had the honour to be included. I availed myself of the opportunity to express to Mr. Rothery my strong conviction that the submission to any three arbitrators of the power to place a cash value on our great sea fisheries was exceedingly distasteful to the great mass of the Canadian people. I reminded him that Canada in 1854 conceded these fisheries to the United States for a term of years as part of a commercial arrangement between the two countries, and I ventured to suggest how much better it would be were the same thing repeated now, and the concession of the fisheries merged in a general treaty of Commercial Reciprocity for a term of years and on a mutually advantageous basis. I expressed my belief to Mr. Rothery that if he could succeed in bringing this about he would confer a great benefit on both countries, and establish good relations between them for years to come, and that probably he might find the United States Government not disinclined to entertain the proposition. Who that owns a property of enormous value would voluntarily consent to dispose of it for a price to be determined by three persons of whose very names he was ignorant ? Would he not say, “let us dispense with arbitrators ; tell me the compensation you propose, and then I will tell you if I will dispose of it ?” Who can tell what view may be taken of our fisheries by the empire selected by the Austrian ambassador ? Would the Americans be satisfied if he gave an award equal to the great estimate that we place upon them ? And what would be the feeling of our people if he named a sum much under their expectation ? Nay, in view of the vast annual value now drawn from the St. Lawrence fisheries—the exhaustless character of those fisheries—the rapidly increasing population of this Continent dependent on them for daily supplies of fish—and the fact that there is no other fishery in the world to enter into competition with them—what greater folly could be imagined than to have a money value placed upon them at all? Mr. Rothery went on to Washington, and some weeks after I had the pleasure of learning from him that he had suggested the substitution of a general commercial treaty for the Fishery Arbitration—and there was some hope of its being favourably entertained. But, meantime, the Canadian Government had been moving in the matter, and in February, of last year, I was informed by them that there was some movement at Washington in favour of a renewal of the old Reciprocity Treaty, and they were anxious that I should visit that city, unofficially, and ascertain what were the prospects of success. I went immediately to Washington and had the advantage of discussing the subject with many of the prominent men of the Republic. I heard a very general desire expressed for the establishment of better commercial relations with Canada, if terms could be arranged to mutual satisfaction; this I communicated to the Government on my return home. Of the official action that followed I have no personal knowledge, but on the 17th of March a commission was issued, under the great seal of Great Britain, appointing Sir Edward Thornton and myself Joint-plenipotentiaries on the part of Her Majesty to negotiate a Treaty of Fisheries, Commerce, and Navigation with the Government of the United States. On the 28th March the negotiation was formerly opened, and I will now read, from the official record, an extract showing the position held in the matter by the Canadian Government:—

“When Her Majesty’s advisers invite the Government of the United States to reconsider the whole commercial relations of the Republic and the Dominion, with a view to placing them on a friendly and durable basis of reciprocal advantage, the question naturally presents itself, how it comes that, having prospered so well since the repeal of the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, Canada now seeks for its restoration. The answer is as natural as the question. The population of the United States is forty millions, and that of the Dominion is but four millions. The boundary between them is for the most part but a surveyor’s line, often unknown even to those who live beside it; and it is of the utmost importance to Canada that common interests and mutual good will should exist between the countries. And what so conducive to this end as commercial intercourse, generously carried on and mutually profitable? The people of Canada are not ignorant that a market near at hand is better than a distant one; and good as their present markets are, they would gladly have the old one in addition. They comprehend the barrier that custom-house restrictions throw in the way even of the existing traffic; and they seek to have these withdrawn. They are proud of their own St. Lawrence route, and intend to improve it to the uttermost for the benefit of the great West and Canadian traffic; but would gladly use the ocean ports and other channels of commerce of the Republic, when freights and fares and friendly reciprocity draw them in that direction. And very great as have been the advantages always accruing to the United States from reciprocity, the Canadians can find only cause of rejoicing at that, so long as they themselves continue to enjoy that moderate degree of prosperity with which Providence has blessed them. There is no mystery in their desire that the commercial relations of the Republic and the Dominion should be placed on the most kindly and unfettered and mutually advantageous basis consistent with their respective existing obligations, and with that connection with Great Britain which the Dominion so happily enjoys.

“It was with these views, and in this spirit, that the Canadian Administration availed itself of the opportunity presented by the twenty-second article of the Treaty of Washington to represent to Her Majesty’s Government the advantage that would accrue to both countries by the substitution of a satisfactory Commercial Treaty in lieu of the money compensation to be paid (under arbitration) by the United States, for twelve years’ enjoyment of the coast fisheries of the Dominion. It was felt that if the large value placed by the Canadian people on their fisheries were not reasonably compensated by the results of the arbitration, a feeling of dissatisfaction might be engendered in the Provinces, not conducive to international harmony; and that if, on the other hand, an award were made equal to the confident anticipations of the Provinces, the good feeling restored in the United States by the Treaty of Washington might be sensibly impaired. To merge the matter in a general measure of mutual commercial concession, for the mutual advantage of both parties, and with injury or injustice to neither, seemed the fitting conclusion to be arrived at by the Governments of two great nations. Her Majesty’s Ministers were pleased to adopt the suggestion of the Canadian Government, and the matter having been brought under the attention of the Secretary of State, and through him to the notice of the President of the United States, a friendly response was at once received, and the necessary measures instituted for opening formal negotiations.”

Honourable gentlemen may therefore dismiss from their minds the false impression that the initiation of this negotiation by the gentlemen on the Treasury Benches was in the slightest degree improper or undignified. And I take this opportunity of expressing my regret that heated partisans outside the walls of Parliament should have spoken of the attitude held by the United States Government in these negotiations as if it had been intended to delude or overreach. Nothing could be more unfounded or unjust. The President of the United States, the Secretary of State, and all the other distinguished persons who took an interest in the negotiations, with hardly an exception, showed the most friendly feeling towards Canada, and a sincere desire to bring about more satisfactory commercial relations. True, they naturally enough looked at the question from their own point of view—and sought to get an advantageous arrangement for their country; but they never concealed or undervalued the difficulties that stood in the way of success—and to the unsettled condition of the country and the financial difficulties now pressing for adjustment, may, in a great measure, be attributed the unfavourable advice in the matter recently given to the President by the Senate of the United States. And now let me call the attention of honourable gentlemen to the manner in which the negotiations proceeded—and very especially to the fact that all that was sought by the British Plenipotentiaries was simply the renewal, for a term of years, of the old Reciprocity Treaty, and the concurrent abandonment of the Fishery Arbitration. From the American Government came the suggestion of an enlargement of the scope of the old Treaty. Mr. Fish suggested the enlargement of our canals, and he was at once informed that the Canadian Government was ready to treat for their enlargement. Mr. Fish suggested the addition of manufactures to the free list of the proposed Treaty, and here is the reply that was made as officially recorded:—

“In regard to the addition of certain classes of manufactures to the free list under the old treaty, we reminded Mr. Fish that the revenue of the Canadian Dominion was largely obtained from a fifteen per cent. ad valorem duty on manufactured goods, and that any articles made free in Canada under agreement with any foreign country must be made free to Great Britain. But we added that the Government of Canada was desirous to afford every facility for the encouragement of extended commercial relations between the Republic and the Dominion, in the belief that nothing could tend more to their mutual advantage, not only in a pecuniary sense, but as tending to foster and strengthen those friendly feelings that ought eminently to prevail between two peoples mainly derived from the same origin, speaking the same language, and occupying the geographic position towards each other of the United States and Canada. We conveyed to Mr. Fish the assurance of the Canadian Government, that acting in this spirit, and in the confidence that we would be met in the same spirit by the Government of the Republic, the assent of Canada will be heartily given to any measure calculated to promote the free and fair interchange of commodities, to reduce the cost of transportation, or conduce to the joint advantage of the two countries, so that it be not easily prejudicial to existing industrial interests of the Canadian people.”

It was then suggested that a projet of a Treaty should be prepared, to form the basis of discussion. That was agreed to—and a projet was accordingly prepared and presented to the American Government by the British Commissioners. It suggested:—

- 1.—That the duration of the Treaty should be 21 years.
- 2.—That the conditions of the Old Treaty of 1854 should be renewed.
- 3.—That the following additional articles should be added to the Free List of the Old Treaty:—

Agricultural implements—to be defined.
Bark, extracts of, for tanning purposes.

Bath bricks.

Bricks for building purposes.

Earth ochres, ground or unground.

Hay.

Lime.

Malt.

Manufactures of iron and steel—to be defined.

Manufactures of iron or steel, and wood jointly—to be defined.

Manufactures of wood—to be defined.

Mineral and other oils.

Plaster, raw or calcined.

Salt.

Straw.

Stone, marble, or granite, partly or wholly cut or wrought.

- 4.—That the Fishery Arbitration provision of the Washington Treaty should be abandoned.
- 5.—That the entire Coasting-Trade of the United States and Canada should be thrown open to the shipping of both countries.
- 6.—That the Welland and St. Lawrence Canals should be enlarged forthwith, so as to admit of the passage of vessels 260 feet long, 45 feet beam, and a depth equal to that of the Lake Harbours.
- 7.—That the Canadian, New York, and Michigan Canals should be thrown open to the vessels of both countries on terms of complete equality; and with full power to tranship cargo at the entrance or outlet of any of the said Canals.
- 8.—That the free navigation of Lake Michigan should be conceded forever to Great Britain, as the free navigation of the St. Lawrence river had been conceded to the United States by the High-Joint Commission, in 1871.
- 9.—That vessels of all kinds built in the United States or Canada, should be entitled to registry in either country, with all the advantages pertaining to home-built vessels.

- 10.—That a Joint Commission should be formed and continued, charged with the deepening and maintaining in efficient condition the navigation of the St. Clair and Detroit rivers and Lake St. Clair.
- 11.—That a similar Joint Commission should be formed and maintained for securing the erection and proper regulation of light-houses on the Great Lakes.
- 12.—That a similar Joint Commission should be formed and maintained to promote the protection and propagation of fish in the inland waters common to both countries.
- 13.—That the citizens of either country should be entitled to letters patent for new discoveries in the other country on the same terms as the citizens of that country enjoyed.
- 14.—That joint action for the prevention of smuggling along the lines should be a subject of consideration and co-operation by the customs authorities of the two countries.

Time was of course needed for consideration of these suggestions, and for inquiry and discussion in regard to them, and it very soon became manifest that the absence of exact knowledge as to the inter-traffic between the Republic and the Provinces in past years, as to the actual operation of the Treaty of 1854 during the thirteen years it was in force, and as to the advantage to be gained by our neighbours from access to our markets in our improved position,—stood greatly in the way of successful negotiation. The misapprehension found to exist as to the condition of Canada, her revenue, her foreign commerce, her shipping, her railway system, and the extent and prosperity of her various industrial avocations was truly marvellous. On every hand, and from very unexpected quarters, you heard it alleged as beyond question that the commerce between the countries in by-gone years had been of little account to them, but always in our favour; that our neighbours bought from us pretty much all we had to sell, while we bought little or nothing from them; that the Reciprocity Treaty made the matter much worse, and enriched us at their expense, and that the abolition of the Treaty of '54 had brought us well nigh to our wits' end. I do not mean to say that such mistakes as these were found among many of the prominent statesmen at Washington, but with a very large proportion of the politicians congregating at the capital such ideas were sincerely entertained and unhesitatingly affirmed. Let me give you an example. I had the good fortune to meet a well-known statesman, equally remarkable for his ability, high personal character and kindness of heart, as for the extreme nature of his protectionist opinions. The subject of the proposed Treaty came up, and I ventured to express the hope that it would receive a more friendly reception from him than had been accorded to a previous one. "What possible good," was his exclamation, "can we get from a Treaty with Canada! When the last Treaty existed, we took everything from you that you had to sell, and you took nothing from us." "Surely," I replied, "you are not stating this seriously." "Of course I am," said he, "surely you don't deny that it was so?" My reply was that I not only denied it, but was prepared to show, beyond the shadow of a doubt, and from the official returns of the United States, that from 1820 up to 1864, the inhabitants of the British Provinces had bought from the United States merchandise and produce to the extent of over $150,000,000 in excess of what the States had bought from them in the same years. I said I had no faith myself in what was termed "the balance of trade," but if there was any truth in it, the traffic of the United States with the Provinces must be all that could be desired, for, up to the third year before the Treaty was repealed, it always showed a large annual balance against Canada. He was utterly incredulous—indignantly incredulous—though my statement was strictly accurate. But said I,—“Let us suppose that you are correct—let us suppose that during all these past years you bought a vast amount from Canada and we bought very little from you—was that a very great disadvantage to you? Do you think your merchants and traders would have flocked over as they did to the lumber-mills and farm yards and factories and fishing-ports of the Provinces to buy our stuff to the extent of many millions per annum unless they got profit by it? They might have done it once or twice with loss—but would they have done it for fifty years in succession, steadily and largely increasing the amount of the purchases from year to year? And apart from the great profits that must have been realized by the re-sale of the goods, was there not great gain to the United States from the transportation of all that stuff overland to your ocean ports, and in shipping it from them in your sea-going vessels to foreign countries?" I made very little impression on my protectionist friend, and his case is but one of a great many similar to it. And, indeed, it is hardly to be wondered at that very great misapprehension should exist in the United States as to our traffic with that country. Until the B. N. A. Colonies were confederated in 1867, all the Provinces were isolated from each other, their public accounts and trade and navigation returns were published separately, if published formally at all; their customs and excise duties were entirely different; and their shipping returns were made up separately, if made up at all. No clear statement of the united traffic of all the Provinces with the American Republic in past years was ever compiled until last year—we, ourselves, in Canada were ignorant of its vast extent—and the absence of reliable data left us open to the misrepresentations of our protectionist opponents in the Republic. Put our traffic together in one account, and hardly could a branch of trade in the United States be named which did not profit by it—but take the traffic of the several Provinces apart, and there was hardly a branch of trade that could not be shown from the example of some one Province to buy nothing of that sort. Upper Canada was shown to send wheat and flour to the United States every year to great amounts—and the attention of western farmers was pointed earnestly to the fact—but it was carefully omitted to be told at the same time, that Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, and Prince Edward Island took much more of these commodities from the United States than the States took from Upper Canada. Cape Breton and Nova Scotia were shown to send a few hundred thousand tons of coal to the Boston and New York markets—and the indignant protests of Pennsylvania were hurled against such an iniquity—but it was carefully omitted to be told that Upper and Lower Canada took four or five times the quantity of coal from Pennsylvania that Cape Breton and Nova Scotia sent into the States. Just so was it with a very large portion of the commodities we sold to our American friends. Yet it was by such weapons that the false impression was implanted deep on the public mind of the United States, that the traffic with the Provinces was utterly unprofitable to the Republic. It soon, as I have said, became perfectly manifest that these false impressions so created must be removed if satisfactory progress was to be made in the reciprocity negotiations. Reliable returns of the traffic for a long series of years between the countries must be compiled, balances struck, comparisons with other countries exhibited. All this was done—every figure having been taken from the official returns of the United States, and a memorandum on the commercial relations of the two countries was prepared, which is now, I believe, in the hands of honourable gentlemen. How entirely erroneous were the impressions of our neighbours as to our traffic with them in past years, is shown beyond cavil in that document. It shows that the British North American Provinces in the 34 years, from 1820 to 1854, bought merchandise from the United States to the extent of $167,000,000; that the United States bought from us in the same period goods to the extent of $67,000,000, and that the so-called "balance of trade" was, therefore $100,000,000 against the Provinces. It shows that from 1854 to 1866—being the thirteen years during which the Treaty of 1854 was in operation—according to the United States returns (for there is a great discrepancy between their returns and ours), the balance was $20,000,000, and according to Canadian returns, $95,000,000 against us, and in favour of the Republic. A large portion of this discrepancy occurred during the last two years of the Treaty's existence, and no doubt arose in large degree from the loose valuations at the Custom-houses on the lines during these years. The memorandum shows further that the gross traffic between the United States and the British Provinces rose in the eight year immediately before the Treaty went into operation, from eight million of dollars in 1845, to nine millions in 1846; to ten millions in 1847; to twelve millions in 1848; to fifteen millions in 1850; to eighteen millions in 1851; and to twenty millions in 1853. In 1854 the Reciprocity Treaty went into operation, and at one jump the traffic went up in that year to no less than thirty-three millions of dollars. In the following year it went to forty-two millions; in 1857, to forty-six millions; in 1859 to forty-eight millions; in 1863 to fifty-five millions; in 1864, to sixty-seven millions; in 1865, to seventy-one millions; and in 1866 (when the Treaty came to an end), to no less than eighty-four millions of dollars. The gross amount of traffic between the countries during the thirteen years of the Treaty's operation amounted, according to the United States returns, to no less than $671,000,000, and according to the Canadian returns, to $630,000,000—either of them, a sum which, considering all the circumstances, must be admitted to be marvellously great. I know not where, in the history of commerce, a parallel of success to this can be found, if we keep in mind that one of the parties to the Treaty had at the time but three millions of population. The memorandum shows also that the purchases from the United States by the British American Provinces during the thirteen years of the Treaty's operations were greater than the purchases from them of China, Brazil, Italy, Hayti, Russia and her possessions, Venezuela, Austria, the Argentine Republic, Denmark and her possessions, Turkey, Portugal and her possessions, the Sandwich Islands, the Central American States, and Japan, in the same years, all put together. It shows further that our purchases during the existence of the Treaty, were of the most valuable character—there having been no less than $150,000,000 of farm products, $8,500,000 of timber, $24,000,000 of miscellaneous, and no less than $151,000 of general, merchandise—a sum to which no other country approached in these years. The memorandum shows also that, in addition to these great commercial exchanges between the countries, an enormous transportation traffic was carried over United States Railways and Canals between the Provinces and Atlantic ports, and vice versa. Accurate returns of this traffic do not appear to have been kept until very lately, but in the six years—namely, from 1868 to 1873—for which we have returns, it appears that the merchandise transported for the British American Colonies over American lines was of the total value of $162,000,000. The memorandum brings out, moreover, from the official statements of United States Commissioners, that our shore fisheries are not of the slight value to the United States that they were placed at in the protocols of the High-Joint Commissioners—but that, on the contrary, they had in the year 1862 over 203,000 tons of shipping engaged in the St. Lawrence fisheries, and 28,000 seamen; that the returns that year considerably exceeded $14,000,000; that at least 5,000 new seamen were annually broken in for the United States marine service; that 600 sail have in one season fished for mackerel in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and taken fish to the value of $1,500,000; and that from 40,000 to 50,000 tons of the United States fishing fleet, worth from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000, annually fish near the three-mile line of the Provinces. It shows that three years from the repeal of the Reciprocity Treaty, which deprived United States fishermen of the shore privileges enjoyed under the Treaty, the United States tonnage in the trade had fallen from 203,000 tons in the year 1862, to 62,000 in 1869—a falling off of seventy per cent; that the reconcession of these shore privileges under the Washington Treaty, doubled the tonnage of the American fishing fleet from what it was in 1869, and that it will soon exceed the tonnage of 1862. The memorandum shows yet further that the foreign trade of Canada was not seriously injured, as seems to have been supposed across the lines, by the abrogation of the Treaty; but that, on the contrary, while from 1854 to 1862 our foreign traffic had averaged but $115,000,000 per annum, it had in the year immediately following the abrogation risen to $142,000,000 in 1869 to $145,000,000; in 1870 to $165,000,000; in 1871 to $189,000,000; in the year 1872, to $214,000,000; and in 1873, the seventh year after repeal, to no less than $240,000,000. But the memorandum brings out another fact worthy of note—that though the repeal of the Treaty did not for an hour stay the increase of our foreign trade, it greatly lessened the proportion of it done with the United States. During the existence of the Treaty the aggregate exchange of commodities with the Republic gradually rose until in the year of its repeal it amounted to 52½ per cent. of our whole foreign traffic. But in the first year after repeal it fell to 42 per cent; in 1868 to 41 per cent; in 1869 to 40 per cent; in 1872 to 36 per cent; and in 1875 to 35 per cent.—And the memorandum discloses another most important fact—that a great change in the character of the traffic between the countries resulted from the repeal of the Treaty. For example, that the price of lumber has gone up so much, and the demand has continued so good, that while we sold to the United States people but five millions of dollars worth in the year before the expiry of the Treaty, and an annual average of but three millions during its whole continuance, we sold in the single year of 1873 over eleven millions of dollars worth. Again, that in regard to wheat, flour, provisions, and other like commodities, of which both countries have a surplus, the effect of the prohibitory duties of the United States has simply been to send the Canadian surplus of these products to compete successfully with the American article in foreign markets where they formerly held sole possession. And still further, it shows that Canada has become a large purchaser of American products in the Chicago and Milwaukee markets, which it carries by the St. Lawrence route for consumption in foreign countries—that this trade only commenced with the repeal of the Treaty, but in the six years following that event aggregated the large amount of $46,583,312. And strange enough, in regard to the much abused "balance of trade," it shows that since the repeal of the treaty the balance had gone so systematically against the Republic, and so steadily in favour of the Provinces, that, in the seven years following repeal, a balance of nearly $52,000,000 had to be settled with our people, by the United States. Nay, it is clearly shown that in spite of all the discouragement that has been thrown in the way of our traffic by high customs duties and custom-house barriers, our annual purchases from the United States are still large enough to keep us in the front rank of their foreign customers; and that with the exception of the British Isles, no country takes as large an amount from them as we do. This memorandum was completed on the 27th of April, and was immediately communicated to Mr. Fish. It was referred to the Treasury Department for examination, and remained in its hands for several weeks. Its facts and figures were closely examined and their accuracy acknowledged fully and frankly. From that time there was a manifest improvement in the impressions as to the character of Canadian commerce, of such persons as took the trouble to read the memorandum, and these were not a few; and the progress of the negotiations was sensibly accelerated. The attention of the United States public press was aroused to the importance of the question—the merits of the proposed Treaty were thoroughly canvassed, and, though severely criticized by the Ultra-Protectionist organs, I have no recollection of any similar measure being received with such general favour by the leading papers of the Republic as was accorded to our project. In New York, the Tribune, Herald, Times, World, Evening Post, Express, Journal of Commerce, Graphic, Mail, and many other leading exponents of public opinion all declared in favour of a new Treaty; and in Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, and other great cities, the unanimity of opinion among the leading journals was equally remarkable. I cannot pass from this part of the subject without referring to a charge that originated in Philadelphia, and was echoed far and wide over the Continent—aye, even in Canadian journals—that this unanimity of the press was obtained by the corrupt use of Canadian public money. The charge is utterly without foundation—it has not a vestige of truth to palliate its concoction. (Hear, hear.) Not one shilling has been spent illegitimately to promote the negotiation, and a final answer to this and all similar charges is found in the fact that the entire cost of the negotiation to the people of Canada, including all necessary disbursements, will amount to little more than four thousand dollars. The negotiation now went on from day to day; the several clauses of the projet were discussed; alterations suggested; modifications adopted; the draught Treaty as it now stands submitted for the approval of the three Governments; and all that remained to make it ready for signature was the clear definition for custom-house purposes of some articles in the free lists, and the correction of an appearance of ambiguity in the wording of one or two passages. It had been understood that Congress would be unable to adjourn before the end of July; but unexpectedly the determination was arrived at to adjourn on the 22nd of June, and that day was near at hand. The Secretary of State suggested that the Draft Treaty, as it then stood, should be sent down by the President of the United States to the Senate for advice, and if favourably entertained by that body, the necessary corrections of language could be made and the Treaty formally executed. It was of course for the United States Government to judge as to the mode of obtaining the sanction of the Senate, and the plan suggested was adopted. The Draft Treaty only reached the Senate two days before the adjournment of Congress, when it was quite impossible to discuss and decide so large and complicated a question as its adoption involved, and the consideration of it was accordingly adjourned to the next ensuing session. We come now, honourable gentlemen, to the consideration of the several provisions embraced in the Draft Treaty as transmitted to the Senate by the President of the United States. And let me say to you very frankly that I do not stand here to-day to contend that the conditions of this bargain are more favourable to Canada than to the United States. On the contrary, I believe that in a commercial treaty between a people of forty million souls and one of four millions, it is almost in the nature of the thing that to the larger country the largest advantage must accrue. But greatly advantageous as this Treaty, if it ever goes into operation, must be to our friends across the lines—there is enough in it, I venture fearlessly to assert, to set the wheels of industry in motion on this side the lines, and to give a new impetus to the development of our great natural resources, as would amply compensate us for all the concessions we are pledged to in the agreement. I acknowledge the force of all that is said as to the immense advantage possessed by the American people in a contest with a Colony of one-tenth their population, and hardly yet past the first stages of forest settlement. I admit the larger means, the vastly greater experience, and the eminent business sagacity they would carry into the contest—but I have faith enough in the industry, the energy, the enterprise, and the indomitable perseverance of my countrymen, and in the cool blood of our northern clime, to believe that in the long run, and a fair field, Canada would hold her own under all these disadvantages. (Hear, hear.) As you are aware, honourable gentlemen, the Draft Treaty embraces ten propositions: 1st. The concession to the United States of our fisheries for 21 years, and the abandonment of the Washington Treaty arbitration. 2nd. The admission, duty free, into both countries, of certain natural products therein named. 3rd. The admission, duty free, of certain manufactured articles therein named. 4th. The enlargement of our Welland and St. Lawrence Canals. 5th. The construction of the Caughnawaga and Whitehall Canals. 6th. The throwing open to each other reciprocally by both countries, the coasting trade of the great inland lakes, and of the St. Lawrence river. 7th. The concession to each other on equal terms of the use of the Canadian, New York, and Michigan Canals. 8th. The reciprocal admission of vessels built in either country to all the advantages of registry in the other. 9th. The formation of a joint commission to secure the efficient lighting of the great inland waters common to both countries. And 10th. The formation of a joint commission to promote the protection and propagation of fish on the great inland waters common to both countries. Now, then, let us examine these propositions seriatim. The first, second, and seventh of them go naturally together, and they need no comment. They embrace simply the conditions of the old Treaty of 1854, which operated so favourably for us, and so much more favourably for the United States. The third proposition—as to manufactures—is the only item that has met with bitter opposition, and that, strangely enough, from all three countries. I will leave it for the present and return to it again. The fourth proposition, for the enlargement of our existing canals, is one eminently for the advantage of the United States, and involves a very large expenditure on our part. It is impossible to estimate the enormous annual gains that must result to the farmers of the Western States when vessels of 1,000 or 1,200 tons shall be able to load in the upper lake ports and sail direct to Liverpool—free from transshipment expenses, brokers' commissions, way-harbour dues and ocean-port charges, and return direct to the prairies with hardy immigrants and cargoes of European merchandise. Canada, no doubt, would have her share of benefit from all this—but it could not be compared for a moment with that of the great North-western and some of the Middle States. The fifth proposition—for the construction of the Caughnawaga Canal—would be also an immense boon to the United States. It would open up to the dense manufacturing population of New England, for the first time, a direct water communication of their own with the great West; it would enable them to load ships of 1,000 tons at their Lake Champlain ports with merchandise for the Prairie States and bring them back freighted with farm produce; and when the Whitehall Canal should be enlarged to Troy, and the improvements of the Upper Hudson completed to deep water, where in the wide world could be found so grand a system of internal water navigation as that stretching, as it then would, in one continuous ship channel from New York on the Atlantic, to the west end of Lake Superior, and possibly ere long, to the eastern base of the Rocky Mountains. Canada, too, would have her share of profit in all this. Her great lumber interests on the Ottawa and its branches would find full advantage from it, and the enterprising farmers of the middle and eastern counties of Ontario would have the New England market, with its three-and-a-half millions of manufacturing population, opened to their traffic. The sixth proposition is the concession to each other of the inland coasting-trade, and nothing could be done more sensible or more profitable to both parties. Our season of navigation on the Lakes is short—the pressure for vessels in particular trades at special times is very great on both sides of the lakes, and freights advance to unreasonable rates. Cheap transportation is a foremost question in this Western industrial world, and what can be conceived more absurd than to see, as is often seen, large quantities of produce lying unshipped for want of vessels, because foreign bottoms cannot take freight from one port to another in the same country? What the United States could fear from the competition of our limited inland marine, with the 5,576 vessels of all kinds, and an aggregate tonnage of 788,000 tons, it is difficult to imagine. The eighth proposition, for the reciprocal admission of vessels built in either country to registry in the other, is generally regarded as highly advantageous to this country, and, no doubt, such is the fact. But I confess I cannot see why it ought not to be regarded as infinitely more advantageous to the United States. During the civil war the merchant vessels of the Republic were sold in large numbers to foreign owners, and acquired foreign registers; and notwithstanding that ship-building had almost disappeared from the United States in consequence of an extreme protectionist policy, the law absolutely forbade their being bought back or vessels of foreign build being purchased in their room. The consequence is, that at this moment, nearly the entire passenger traffic of the Atlantic is in the hands of foreigners—a vast proportion of the freight of merchandise from and to foreign countries is also in the hands of foreigners—and only two months ago we had the startling statement made officially by Mr. Brewster, the very able Secretary of the United States Treasury, that no less a sum than one hundred millions of dollars is paid annually by the people of the United States to foreign ship-owners for freights and fares. Now, a large portion of these ships, which the people of the United States require so urgently, can be as well built in St. John and Halifax and Quebec, and at less cost than in any other country. Why then deprive American citizens of the privilege of buying them from us, and sailing them as their own? We are told that American ship-building is reviving, but were it to revive with all the rapidity the most sanguine could desire, it could not keep pace with the wear and tear of the present reduced marine and the annually increasing demand, much less begin to supply the vacuum created since the war. The 9th and 10th proposals are for the appointment of Joint Commissions for the care of the lighthouses and the fisheries of the inland waters common to both countries; but as to these there is no difference of opinion, and no doubt of the great mutual advantage that might flow from the proposed concerted action in regard to them. These, then, are the whole of the items; and now let us return to the one we passed by—the list of manufactures. Now, honourable gentlemen, I shall not allege for one moment that there is no ground whatever for the loud outcries we have heard from protectionist manufacturers against the admission of their wares to the free list of the Treaty. That some would have suffered by the competition it would have entailed, I readily admit—for in all vocations there are men whose want of experience or want of energy or deficiency of capital unfit them for such a contest. But while all our sympathies must have gone heartily with such men in these circumstances, had the Treaty been consummated, I cannot think that this great measure, affecting advantageously, as it would have done, so large a proportion of our industrial population, ought to have been given up simply because some among us might have suffered from its provisions. Are there not always sufferers by every new measure of taxation—by every change of the tariff—by every new municipal assessment scheme? And yet who dreams of rejecting a great measure of public policy because such individual hardships unfortunately attend them? I cannot, however, help thinking that many of the gentlemen who have been complaining most loudly of their threatened ruin would have been more frightened than hurt had it gone into effect. It cannot be an unmixed evil to exchange a market of four millions of buyers for one of forty millions, and I know some shrewd manufacturers among us who heard with deep regret of the action of the American Senate. It is not to be doubted, however, that a great deal of the alarm which has been professed in reference to this section of the scheme, has arisen from the parties not knowing exactly what the Treaty proposed. I have myself met many persons who supposed that they would be most injuriously affected by it, but who found on a little inquiry that their articles were not in the slightest degree affected. A curious instance of this was seen in the excited meeting of New York druggists to denounce the injurious influence of the treaty on their trade—though not an article in their business was touched by its provisions. Only within the last few days I met a most intelligent gentleman who was positive that his business was to be very much injured, if not destroyed; but it turned out, after a little conversation, that the article he mainly manufactured was not at all affected by the Treaty. And there have been many such cases among those loudest in their protestations. A great deal of the indignation, too, and a great deal of the eloquence has proceeded from parties who were angry—not because their wares were included in the scheme, but because they were excluded from it. But, honourable gentlemen, for my own part, I am ready to meet all objections to this part of the proposed Treaty on higher and broader grounds. I contend that there is not one article contained in the schedules that is a fit object of taxation—not one that ought not to be totally free of duty either in Canada or the United States, in the interest of the public. I contend that the Finance Minister of Canada who—Treaty or no Treaty with the United States—was able to announce the repeal of all customs-duties on the entire list of articles in schedules A, B, & C—even though the lost revenue was but shifted to articles of luxury—would carry with him the hearty gratitude of the country. I call the attention of the Senate earnestly to this fact—that nearly every article in the entire list of manufactures is either of daily consumption and necessity among all classes of our population, or an implement of trade, or enters largely into the economical prosecution of the main industries of the Dominion. Let me read to you the whole list :—

 Water-wheel machines and apparatus, or parts thereof.

These articles were selected with a triple object. The first was, as I have already stated, that they should be articles of common daily use among the people or affecting the prosecution of our leading industries. The second was that they should be of such a character as to be difficult to smuggle across the lines, and easy of identification as the genuine production of Canada or the States. And the third was that they should be as far as possible the productions of branches of industry natural to Canada and the United States, and in which a considerable inter-traffic between the two countries might reasonably be expected. And if the list is carefully examined I think it will be admitted that the articles fairly fulfil these three conditions. Could anything be more impolitic than the imposition of customs duties on such articles as these? Time was in Canada when the imposition of duty on any article was regarded as a misfortune, and the slightest addition to an existing duty was resented by the people. But increasing debt brought new burdens—the deceptive cry of “incidental protection” got a footing in the land—and from that the step has been easy to the bold demand now set up by a few favoured industries that all the rest of the community ought to be, and should rejoice to be, taxed $17\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. to keep them in existence. And it is remarkable how small a portion of the community are concerned in the maintenance of this injustice. I hold in my hand an accurate return of the men, women, and children personally employed in all the industries that could possibly have been affected either advantageously or injuriously by the treaty, had it gone into operation—and it appears that the entire number is 68,813. Of these, a considerable number would practically not be affected at all—for they have no protection now and don't want any; a large number would only be affected in a small part of their business; and a very large number would be advantageously affected by the Treaty. The number who could honestly declare that "ruin" to them would be the result, would be small indeed. And it is not unworthy of note how very small are the contributions of the industries that might be affected by the Treaty to the foreign exports of the country. In the year ending 30th of June, 1874, the exports of domestic products were as follows:—

Products of the Farm.....	$34,269,311
Products of the Forest	26,817,715
Products of the Fisheries	5,292,368
Products of the Mine	3,977,216
New ships	796,675
Miscellaneous	419,800
	<hr/>
	$71,573,085
Manufactures	2,353,663
Total	$73,926,748

The amount of manufactures exported that year was, therefore, a little over two millions of dollars—but I hold in my hand a return of the articles that made up this amount, and I find that several hundred thousand dollars of it could not fairly be classed as manufactures at all; that more than half of the remaining amount is made up of articles not protected now; and that the contributors who are protected now and could be injuriously affected by the Treaty are few in number and very small exporters. And now let us place in contrast with this the great agricultural interest with its half million of hardy workers—which has no protection—which feeds the whole people, and contributes besides annually to the foreign exports of the Dominion commodities to the value of thirty-four millions of dollars. I hold in my hand a return of the customs duties levied on agricultural products going into the United States; and to show the advantage that would have accrued to our farmers from the operation of the Treaty, I will now read some of the items:—

Animals.....	20 per cent.
Beef	1 c. per lb.
Butter	4 c. per lb.
Cheese	4 c. per lb.
Honey	20 c. per gallon.
Lard	2c. per lb.

Barley	15 c. per bushel.
Beans	10 per cent.
Bran	20 per cent.

Do (dressed)	$40 per ton.

All these duties would have been swept away and the American market thrown freely open for all farm products. The great lumber interest, too, in which 100,000 men are said to be engaged—which has no protection—which not only supplies our home market, but sends 27 millions of dollars worth of lumber annually to foreign countries, and employs a large fleet of vessels in its traffic, how would it have been affected by the operation of the Treaty? Why it would have swept away an average duty of 20 per cent. from the entire exportation to the States. And just so would it have been with our great mineral interest. Seventy-five cents per ton now levied on Cape Breton and Pictou coal would have been abolished, and the New England markets would have been freely opened to our coal trade. Twenty per cent. on iron ore and one and a-half cents per lb. on lead ore, would also have disappeared. The great coast fishery interest would also have been largely benefited—for the American market would have been secured to it for twenty-four years to come. On the whole, therefore, I think it will be safe to come to the conclusion that, however a portion of our manufacturing interests might have been affected by the Treaty, the result on the large industries of the Dominion could not have failed to be beneficial. I come now, honourable gentlemen, to the objections which have been urged against the Treaty from such quarters as entitle them to a formal answer. The first of these is the allegation that the Treaty discriminated against Great Britain, in favour of the United States. Nothing could be more unfounded than this. It was perfectly understood from the opening of the negotiations that no article could be free from duty in regard to the United States that was not also free with regard to Great Britain, and nothing else was ever contemplated for a moment. The other objections which have been made I find so clearly formulated in a memorial of the Dominion Board of Trade, and clothed in such unusually temperate language, that I should answer them seriatim. And I venture to believe that a very cursory examination will show how very little force is contained in the whole of them. The first objection of the Board is in regard to what has been styled “the sliding scale,” and about which we have heard a very great deal for many months past. In the first place, then, I have to say that the gradual reduction of the existing customs duties was not part of the Treaty, but merely a mode of putting the Treaty in operation as easily as possible for all parties concerned. It was suggested merely as a means of overcoming two difficulties found to exist, not only in the United States but in Canada as well. It was supposed to be not undesirable to give manufacturers some time of preparation for the change by gradually reducing the existing duties on foreign goods. Moreover, had the duties gone off in one day, the revenues of both countries would have been seriously affected, and the simultaneous imposition of new taxes to replace the loss of the revenue, might have been a difficult task. But, in truth, the importance of this matter has been absurdly exaggerated. It has been totally ignored that—though the duties of the United States on fine manufactured goods are enormously high—on the articles we send them the average is only about 24 per cent. Now, one-third of this coming off would have made their rate for the first year 16 per cent., while ours would have been nearly 12, and for the second year their 8 per cent. against our 6; and at the end of the second year all the duty would have come off in both countries. Moreover, the important fact seems to have been forgotten or concealed, that we would have had some compensation for that small sliding-scale disadvantage, in the fact that the coasting trade and ship registry clauses would have gone at once into operation, while the enlargement of our canals could not have become available before 1880. And to sum up the matter it is by no means certain that the sliding-scale might not have been dispensed with altogether, for in the Customs Acts giving effect to the Treaty, clauses would, no doubt, have been inserted, giving the two Governments power by proclamation to put the whole Treaty in force at any earlier moment they might mutually find convenient. The second objection of the Board of Trade is the danger they see in a promise to complete the canal works by 1880. I dare say the Canadian Government carefully considered this matter before they committed themselves to it, and had the best advice upon the point that skilled engineers could afford them; and I venture to believe that my honourable friend in the other Chamber, who so admirably presides over the Public Works Department, was as competent to judge of what was fitting to be done in the premises as any man in Canada. The third objection is that in the opinion of the Board of Trade the entire ocean coasting trade of the United States, should have been conceded to Canada. No doubt—but probably the other party had something to say to that. The fourth objection of the Board is that the right of obtaining United States registry for Canadian ships cannot be regarded as a valuable concession—seeing that Canadians, instead of keeping their ships and sailing them, might be seduced into selling them, and thereby transfer to the Americans the great profits of the carrying-trade. I venture to think this objection is not worthy of a reply. The fifth objection of the Board is, that the Caughnawaga Canal should not have been stipulated to be built until the construction of the Whitehall Canal was absolutely secured. The Canadian Government thought otherwise, and I venture to believe they were right in what they did. The chief interest of the United States may be “in the opening up of a new route to the ocean”—but a very important interest of Canada is to open up a new water route from New England to the West. The sixth objection of the Board is, that the right of re-entry of goods into the country of their production should have been provided for, but was not. All goods placed in bond can now be re-entered in the country from whence they came. Surely the Board cannot mean that broken packages of goods should be returned? The seventh objection of the Board is, that it cannot tell whether goods manufactured in either country must be composed entirely of native materials. Certainly not. The eighth, and last, objection is, that all consular fees and certificates should have been abolished by the Treaty, but were not. It is by no means clear that this would have been an advantage. The hon. gentleman then proceeded to refer to the recent action of the United States Senate on the Draft Treaty and to its return to the President with the advice that it was inexpedient to proceed with it. He explained that the proceedings of the Senate had been taken in executive session and were therefore strictly secret, but the probability was that no full discussion of the matter had been had in consequence of the shortness of the session, the absorbing interests of the questions now agitated and the large financial deficit that had to be met by the imposition of new taxes. The fate of the negotiation was, however, settled for the present, but the agreement that resulted from it was on record, and he did not doubt would yet make its appearance again, and form the basis of a new and more successful negotiation. It took six years to conclude the negotiation for the Treaty of 1854, and not a few delays and rejections occurred in that time. He totally misconstrued the present temper of the American public mind if a great change on the subject of protection and finance and foreign trade was not approaching; and when that day arrived the large and practical scheme embraced in the Draft Treaty will hardly be forgotten. But be that as it might, it was not for the people of Canada to be influenced by any such anticipation. They had shown their ability to open new markets for themselves when the American market was closed against them, and the clear path for them was to follow up, with redoubled energy and perseverance, the policy on which they had entered. Let the Americans load their industries with customs' duties as they choose; be it the firm policy of Canada to remove every barrier in the way of commercial extension, to repeal all duties on raw materials, on articles used in manufacturing, and on the common necessities of daily life, and to replace the revenue lost, if needed, by a wiser and cheaper system of taxation; let them seek to develop their great national industries, and especially the agricultural, shipping, fishing, mineral, and lumber industries; let them open up new markets adapted to their traffic, and let the Canadian flag be found floating on every sea. The honourable gentleman concluded by apologizing for detaining the House so long, and resumed his seat after speaking for two hours.

EXTRACTS FROM THE FRENCH CUSTOMS TARIFF.

(The General Tariff.)

VALUATIONS AND PRE-EMPTIONS.

Art. 4.

Should the Customs have reason to believe that the goods have been declared under their value, they possess the right of seizing them, upon paying to the importer thereof the price declared in the invoice, plus 5 per cent., in the case of goods entered under the conventional tariff, or plus 10 per cent., if the goods come under the general tariff. In such a case, the importer may claim in writing an immediate appraising of the goods through experts. The Customs have the same privilege in case they do not wish to avail of their right of pre-emption. The decision of the arbitrators must be rendered within a fortnight.

If the value determined by the experts is admitted as the correct one, or shows that the under-valuation of the goods is less than 5 per cent., the duties are settled on the value originally declared. If the goods have been under-valued 5 per cent. or under 10 per cent., the Customs may exercise their right of pre-emption or collect the duties on the value fixed by the experts; if the experts show that the under-valuing exceeds 10 per cent or more, the Customs may exercise their right of pre-emption or collect duties on the value settled by the experts, plus 50 per cent. as a fine.

If the value fixed by the experts exceeds that declared by 5 per cent, their fees will have to be paid by the importer; if it be the other way, the Customs will be responsible for them.

SUPPLEMENTARY DUTIES.

Art. 5.

Beer, alcohols, liqueurs, varnishes containing methylated spirits, ether, colloidion, chloroform, playing-cards, and various products whose basis is soda, are subject, on being imported, to supplementary taxes added, as far as practicable, to the rates given in the conventional tables. These taxes are in compensation of the equivalent taxes inflicted upon French manufactures.

GOODS OMITTED IN THE TARIFF.

Art. 10.

All goods which do not appear in the table of duties or which are not assimilated to others will be treated as the article the most analogous to them.

The total value of tea entered for consumption in 1872-73 was $3,287,318, of which $3,285,476 is included in the value of free goods. The consumption of 1873-74 shows the diminished value of $1,716,793, of which $1,418,267 is also included in free goods. The reason for the great apparent excess of consumption in 1872-3, is found in the repeal of the duties on tea and coffee, which caused all of these goods in warehouse to be entered out free.

The excess of free goods imported from Great Britain in 1872-73 and 1873-74 is accounted for chiefly by the large supplies of railway iron received, and by tea and coffee being then free, also by metals of various kinds being included, which were subsequently transferred to the list of goods chargeable with 5 per cent. duty.

Note by the compiler.—Before July 1, 1872, duties were charged on tea and coffee imported into Canada, from all countries alike. From that date to January 1st, 1873, these articles were free from all countries alike. From January 1st, 1873, to May 1, 1874, tea and coffee imported from the United States were liable to 10 per cent. duty ; being free from all other countries ; but on the latter date the duties on these articles, imposed by the Customs and Excise Act of that year, took effect, and the differential duty against the United States was abolished. These dates must be remembered in reading the figures given in the two tables of imports next above, and in the one next following.

BRITISH IRON DUTIES FOR 147 YEARS.

The following figures show the varying import duties on foreign iron, levied by the British Government during a period of 147 years—1679 to 1825 inclusive. They are taken from an article in the New York Tribune of December 24, 1866, which has been extensively republished, both in the United States and in Canada. As far as the compiler of the present volume knows, the figures given have never been challenged; and it may be assumed that they are true to the record:

Year.	Duty per ton. £ s. d.	Year.	Duty per ton. £ s. d.
1679	0 10 0	1805	5 6 0
1710 In British vessels.....	2 1 6	1806	5 7 5½
“ Foreign “	2 10 10	1809	5 9 10
1782	2 16 2	1813	6 9 10
1796	3 1 9	1819 In British vessels.....	6 10 0
1797	3 4 7	“ Foreign “	7 18 6
1798	3 15 5	Small sizes, hammered iron	20 0 0
1803	4 4 ½	Hoop iron	23 15 0
1804	4 17 1	1825 As in 1819.

In 1825 the prices of iron per ton were as follows in the countries named:—France, £25 10s.; Sweden, £13 13s.; Belgium, £16 14s.; Russia, £13 13s.; Germany, £16 14s.; England, £10. In 1826 the English duty on bar iron was reduced to £1 10s.; and on hammered rods, small sizes, to £5: while hoop iron remained at £23 10s., and pig iron at 10s. per ton.

In 1785 Parliament prohibited the exportation of tools, engines, models, or plans of machines used in the manufacture of iron, under the penalty of one year's imprisonment of the shipper, £200 fine, confiscation of the articles shipped or intended to be shipped; a fine of £200 on the master of the vessel; and the same on the custom house officers, who were to be dismissed, and be thereafter incapable forever of holding office. For enticing iron workmen out of England the penalty was one year's imprisonment and £500 fine for every workman so enticed; the fine to be doubled for the second offence. In 1795 the Act prohibiting the exportation of tools and machinery was made perpetual. In 1796 England had 121 furnaces, and made 124,879 tons of iron; and in 1802, 168 furnaces, making 170,000 tons annually. In 1818 the production per annum had risen to 300,000 tons.

CANADIAN CUSTOMS TARIFF, 1879.

An Act to alter the Duties of Customs and Excise, with the Tariff of Duties payable under it.

(In force on 15th March, 1879 ; assented to, 15th May.)

HER MAJESTY, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate and House of Commons of Canada, enacts as follows :—

1. So much of all Acts and parts or schedules of Acts and of all Orders in Council, as imposes any duty of customs upon goods (which word shall, for all the purposes of this Act, have the meaning assigned to it in the Act passed in fortieth year of Her Majesty's reign and intituled, "An Act to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting the Customs"), or exempt goods from Customs duty when imported into Canada, or is in any wise inconsistent with this Act, is hereby repealed, but any power conferred upon the Governor in Council by the Act last cited, (40 Vict. cap. 10) to transfer dutiable goods to the list of goods free of duty, is not hereby abrogated or impaired :—and in lieu and instead of all other duties of Customs upon goods imported into Canada, there shall be raised, levied, collected and paid upon the goods enumerated in Schedule A to this Act, or referred to as not enumerated therein but charged with duty, imported into Canada or taken out of warehouse for consumption therein, the several duties of Customs set forth and described in the said Schedule A, and set opposite to each respectively, or charged on them as not enumerated ; subject to the provisions hereinafter made.

2. The goods enumerated in Schedules B and C may, subject to the provisions and conditions therein mentioned, be imported into Canada or taken out of warehouse for consumption therein, without payment of any duty of Customs thereon.

3. The goods enumerated in Schedule D shall not be imported into Canada, under the penalty therein mentioned, and if imported shall be forfeited and forthwith destroyed.

4. The value of all bottles, flasks, jars, demijohns, carboys, casks, hogsheads, pipes, barrels, and all other vessels or packages, manufactured of tin, iron, lead, zinc, glass, or any other material, capable of holding liquids, crates, barrels and other packages containing glass, china, crockery, or earthenware, and all packages in which goods are commonly placed for home consumption including cases in which bottled spirits, wines, or malt liquors are contained, and every package, being the first receptacle or covering enclosing goods for purpose of sale, shall, in all cases not otherwise provided for, in which they contain goods subject to an ad valorem duty, be taken and held to be a part of the fair market value of such goods for duty, and when they contain goods subject to specific duty only, such packages shall be charged with a duty of Customs of twenty per centum ad valorem, to be computed upon their original cost or value ; and all or any of the above packages described as capable of holding liquids, when containing goods exempt from duty under this Act, shall be charged with a duty of twenty per centum ad valorem ; but, all packages not hereinbefore specified, and not herein specially charged with or declared liable to duty under regulations and being the usual and ordinary packages in which goods are packed for exportation only, according to the general usage and custom of trade, shall be free of duty.

5. On all goods imported into Canada, subject under this Act to ad valorem duty, upon which a drawback of duties has been allowed by the Government of the country where the same were manufactured, the amount of such drawback shall, in all cases, be taken and considered to be a part of the fair market value of such goods, and duty shall be collected thereon; and in cases where the amount of such drawback has been deducted from the value of such goods upon the face of the invoice under which entry is to be made, the Collector of Customs or proper officer shall add the amount of such deduction and collect and cause to be paid the lawful duty thereupon; and the fair market value of all goods imported into Canada shall be understood to be the ordinary wholesale price at which the same are sold for home consumption in the country where they are purchased or manufactured, without deduction of any kind because of any drawback paid or to be paid thereon, or because of any special arrangement between the seller and purchaser having reference to the exportation of such goods, or the exclusive right to territorial limits for the sale thereof, or because of any royalty payable upon patent rights but not payable when goods are purchased for exportation, or on account of any other consideration by which a special reduction in price might or could be obtained: Provided that nothing herein shall be understood to apply to general fluctuations of market values.

6. Any or all of the following articles, that is to say, animals of all kinds, green fruit, hay, straw, bran, seeds of all kinds, vegetables (including potatoes and other roots), plants, trees, shrubs, coal and coke, salt, hops, wheat, peas and beans, barley, rye, oats, Indian corn, buckwheat and all other grain, flour or meal of any other grain, butter, cheese, fish (salted or smoked), lard, tallow, meats (fresh, salted or smoked), and lumber, may be imported into Canada free of duty, or at a less rate of duty than is provided by this Act, upon Proclamation of the Governor in Council, which may be issued whenever it appears to his satisfaction that similar articles from Canada may be imported into the United States free of duty, or at a rate of duty not exceeding that payable on the same under such Proclamation when imported into Canada.

7. If at any time any greater duty of Customs should be payable in the United States of America on tea or coffee imported from Canada than on tea or coffee imported from any other country, then the Governor in Council may impose on tea or coffee imported into Canada from the said United States an additional duty of customs equal to the duty payable in the United States on tea or coffee imported from Canada: Provided that tea or coffee imported into Canada from any country other than the said United States, but passing in bond to the United States, shall be taken and rated as a direct importation from the country in which the tea or coffee was purchased.

8. An allowance may be made for deterioration by natural decay or breakage upon all perishable and brittle goods imported into Canada, such as green fruit and vegetables, crockery, china, glass and glassware, provided such damage is found to exceed twenty-five per cent. of the value thereof upon an examination to be made by an appraiser, or proper officer of customs, at their first landing, or within three days of such landing; but such allowance shall be only for the amount of loss in excess of twenty-five per cent. of the whole quantity of such goods contained or included in any one invoice ; and provided the duty has been paid on the full value thereof, a refund of such duty may be allowed and paid in the proportion and on fulfilment of the conditions above specified, but not otherwise, on application to the Minister of Customs.

9. In determining the dutiable value of goods, except when imported from Great Britain and Ireland, there shall be added to the cost or the actual wholesale price or fair market value at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country from whence the same has been imported into Canada, the cost of inland transportation, shipment and trans-shipment, with all the expenses included, from the place of growth, production or manufacture, whether by land or water, to the vessel in which shipment is made, either in transitu or direct to Canada, subject to such regulations as may be made by the Governor in Council.

10. The Governor in Council shall from time to time establish such regulations, not inconsistent with law, as may be required to secure a just, faithful and impartial appraisal of all goods imported into Canada, and just and proper entries of the actual or fair market value thereof, and of the weights, measures or other quantities thereof, as each case may require ; and such regulations, whether general or special, so made by the Governor in Council, shall have the full force and authority of law, and it shall be the duty of the appraisers of Canada and every of them, and every person who shall act as such appraiser, or of the Collector of Customs, as the case may be, by all reasonable ways and means in his or their power, to ascertain, estimate and appraise the true and fair market value and wholesale price, (any invoice or affidavit thereto to the contrary notwithstanding,) of the goods at the time of exportation, and in the principal markets of the country whence the same have been imported into Canada, and the proper weights, measures or other quantities, and the fair market value or wholesale price of every of them, as the case may require.

11. No refund of duty paid shall be allowed, because of any alleged inferiority or deficiency in quantity of goods imported and entered, and which have passed into the custody of the importer under permit of the Collector of Customs, nor because of the omission in the invoice of any trade discount, or other matter or thing, which might have the effect of reducing the value of such goods for duty, unless the same has been reported to the Collector of Customs within ten days of the date of entry, and the said goods have been examined by the said Collector or by an appraiser, or other proper officer of Customs, and the proper rate or amount of reduction certified by him after such examination ; and if such Collector or proper officer reports that the goods in question cannot be identified as those named in the invoice and entry in question, then and in such case no refund of the duty or any part thereof shall in any case be allowed ; and all applications for refund of duty in such cases shall be submitted, with the evidence and all particulars, for decision of the Minister of Customs, who may then order payment on finding the evidence to be sufficient and satisfactory.

12. The whole or part of the duty of thirty per centum ad valorem imposed by this Act upon wines imported into Canada, may be remitted upon proclamation of Governor in Council, which may be issued whenever it appears to his satisfaction that the Governments of France and Spain, or either of them, have made changes in their tariffs of duties imposed upon articles imported from Canada in reduction or repeal of the duties now in force in the said countries.

13. In lieu of all Excise duties—except license fees—now or heretofore imposed on spirits, there shall be imposed, levied and collected upon every gallon of the strength of proof by Sykes' hydrometer, and so in proportion for any greater or less strength of spirits, the manufacture of which has not been wholly completed, or upon which the duty has not been paid before the coming into force of this section, an excise duty of one dollar.

14. In lieu of all Excise duties—except license fees—now or heretofore imposed on malt, there shall be imposed, levied and collected on every pound of malt made and weighed as removed from the kiln, and upon which the duty had not been paid before the coming into force of this section, an Excise duty of one cent.

15. Upon all stocks of malt liquor held by Licensed Brewers at the time of the coming into force of this section, a drawback may be paid on the malt contained in such stock, equal to the duty paid thereon in excess of one cent. per pound, and the quantity of malt contained in such stocks of malt liquor, shall be determined under the existing departmental regulations for determining the quantity of malt contained in malt liquor.

16. In lieu of all Excise duties—except license fees—now imposed on Tobacco known as "common Canadian twist," otherwise called "tabac blanc en torquette," being the unpressed leaf rolled and twisted, and made wholly from raw tobacco the growth of Canada, and upon raw leaf the growth of Canada, there shall be imposed, levied and collected on every pound, or less quantity than a pound, an Excise duty of four cents.

17. The foregoing sections of this Act shall be held to have come into force, and the duties mentioned therein and in the schedules to this Act shall be held to have been imposed and to have been substituted for those imposed by any Acts or parts of Acts theretofore in force, on and after the fifteenth day of March, in the present year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, and to have been payable on all goods imported or taken out of warehouse for consumption upon or after the said day, or becoming subject to the duties of Excise on and after the same under the next preceding four sections.

18. The Acts now in force respecting the Customs and respecting Inland Revenue and Excise, and all regulations lawfully made or to be made under them respectively, shall apply to the duties imposed by this Act, except in so far only as they may be inconsistent with this Act: and all words and expressions used in this Act shall have the meaning assigned to them in the said Acts respectively: and the said Acts respecting the Customs and Inland Revenue and Excise shall continue to apply to any duties accrued under enactments hereby repealed, which may not have been paid before the day last mentioned, and to all bonds, penalties or forfeitures or proceedings relating to or resulting from such non-payment, or the non-observance of any enactment or provision of law respecting any such duties

UNITED STATES IMPORTS.

TABLE shewing Quantities, Values, Rates of Duty, Average Dutiable Values per unit of quantity, and Average Duties ad valorem, on the Commodities undermentioned, imported into the United States during the year ending 30th June, 1878.

(Compiled from the Official Report of the Bureau of Statistics.)

In this table the column giving "Average dutiable values per unit of quantity" is a most useful one for reference. Thus, taking the article of "Coal, bituminous and shale," we find the exact quantity imported to have been 572,845.78 tons, which in this table is put down at 572,846 tons, as above indicated. The value of this is stated at \$1,929,660, and in the last column but one the average value per ton is given—\$3.368—or a fraction under three dollars and thirty-seven cents. In the last column, it is seen that the specific duty of 75 cents per ton on the year's import of coal is equal to 22.26 per cent. on its value—a calculation of great interest for ready reference. In cases where compound duties are levied—partly specific and partly ad valorem—the last column is of special value. For instance, among cottons we find that on one certain description of goods the duty is $5\frac{1}{2}$ cents per square yard and 10 per cent. ad valorem, and on some other descriptions $5\frac{1}{2}$ cents per square yard and 20 per cent. ad valorem; and in the column referred to the whole duty on each of these two classes of goods is found to have been, for the year's importation, 38.66 and 57.82 per cent. respectively. The reader is thus enabled to see at a glance what per centages precisely the specific and compound duties levied were upon the declared or accepted Custom House valuation of the goods.

The full table of imports, both free and dutiable, prepared by the Statistical Bureau, covers 170 closely-printed pages; but in this compilation only the more important classes of duty-paying goods are selected, including manufactures of iron, cotton, wool, linen, and leather, also sugars, wines, and spirits, all which are given in full. The figures shewing dutiable values per unit of quantity, or the actual Custom House valuation per pound, yard, &c., of the articles imported, also those shewing the actual per centages ad valorem of specific and compound duties, are the result of many and laborious calculations; and these two columns of this table are alone worth the price of the book to mercantile men. It is worth something, for instance, to be able to see at a glance that on five different classes of blankets distinguished the duties were 89.65, 86.57, 94.13, 76.09, and 74.74 per cent. respectively, on the Custom House values, while the values per pound were respectively $0.366, $0.581, $0.682, $1.215, and $1.258; or varying from about 36 cents to $1.25 per pound. In other important classes of articles the same valuable information is available at a glance.

THE PROHIBITORY FRENCH DUTY ON CANADIAN VESSELS.

From the official Report of Proceedings at the eighth annual meeting of the Dominion Board of Trade, pages 119 and 120.)

At the afternoon session, at Ottawa, January 16th, 1878.

Mr. W. M. ELDER (St. John, N. B.) moved, seconded by Mr. R. R. DOBELL (Quebec) :—

“That the good offices of the Dominion Government be asked, with a view to procure, through the assistance of the British Government, the registration in France of Canadian-built vessels on terms of equality with those of Great Britain.”

This question has already been before this Board, and, I believe, the discussions on it have borne fruit. The subject is, I understand, now occupying the attention of the British and Canadian Governments. and correspondence is going on upon it. Mr. Dobell mentioned incidentally just now, that, whereas, under a recent treaty with France, British ships can be registered at two francs per ton, we have to pay forty francs per ton. No doubt this is the result of an oversight. Our ships bearing British register are British ships, and there is, therefore, no necessity for this mistake being continued. However the mistake may have arisen, we have to pay forty francs per ton before our ships are admitted to French register. Canada is a much larger ship-owning country than France, and there ought to be a large intercourse in the purchase of ships, between the two countries. We have in years gone by sold annually half a million dollars worth of ships to France; and, if we could now sell on the same terms as Great Britain, it would revive an industry of which we have been proud, and which is now somewhat depressed. The tendency in the Maritime Provinces is to retain only new ships, and sell old ships to other countries. The very reverse prevails in France. They are willing, for their coasting trade, to buy old ships of four or five hundred tons. The ships we want to sell they want to buy, but we are met with this duty of forty francs per ton. We are seeking to obtain the same privilege as Great Britain, by admitting light wines into this country at low duties. This resolution is in accordance with the policy which prevails between France and England, and has everything in its favour. I hope it will again receive the favourable attention of this Board.

Mr. DOBELL : I should like to hear from the Executive what steps they have taken to present the views of the Board to the Government. I would like to hear what progress they have to report.

The resolution was adopted.

COMPARISON of American rates of drawback on refined sugars, made from duty-paid raw sugars, established by the Treasury Circular of September 26, 1877, and now in force, with those allowed before that date.

	Old Rates. Per 100 lbs.	New Rates. Per 100 lbs.
Loaf, cut loaf, crushed, granulated, and powdered.....	$3 60	$3 18
White coffee sugar, undried, and above No. 20, Dutch standard	3 00	2 58
All grades of coffee sugars, No. 20, Dutch standard, and below it.	2 50	2 08
Sugar, refined from melado, on which was paid a duty of $1.87½ per 100 lbs., same as if refined from raw sugar, sugar refined from molasses		1 25
	Per Gallon.	Per Gallon.
Syrup, from sugar.....	.06½
Syrup, from melado.....	.05½
Syrup, from molasses.....	.05

All the drawback rates on refined sugar are subject to a retention of 1 per cent., and on syrups of 10 per cent.; which brings the the present net drawbacks to the figures given on page 39.
